Overcrowded PHS? Yes, But Maybe Curriculum Comes First?

"Why not talk about the programs and curriculum you'd like to have, then try to get the space you want?

That particular phrasing came from a Princeton High student (Peter Bruce), but the general idea bounded back and forth, from parent, teacher, taxpayer, administrator in a pair of meetings held last week to discuss Long Range and Short Range planning for Princeton's public schools, principally Princeton High.

For the first meeting, held during the Wednesday Afternoon Program, about 50 people edged into PHS' square old Room 121, a schoolroom that perhaps symbolizes some of the high school problems. (But the next night, at the first of three public Long Range discussions one man warned that busy classrooms may come back into educational fashion after a couple of generations, so beware!)

The Wednesday discussion, weasty and provocative, went on for some time after the normal 3:30 closing of "Wednesday" Programs.

Thursday night's public meeting, on the other hand, was characterized by Richard Magee as "aimless and groping." Dr. Magee and others in the audience of about 100 at Community Park School, asked 'Give us something to grasp!'

"The community is asked to participate in Long Range planning," one man said, "but we need more specifics."

● That meeting was on "Finance and Governance." This Thursday's meeting, to be held from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. in Community Park, will be on "Demography and Facilities."

● The chairman, Mrs. C. Harry Kahn, emphasizes that "we are eager to hear people talk on other issues as well — there are no subject-matter barriers."

Short and Long. Short Range, something must be done immediately about overcrowding at the high school, says the report of the Citizens' Advisory Committee for Long Range Planning.

But — "is space the real issue?" was a question raised Wednesday afternoon and again Thursday night.

"Just to relieve over-crowding, you could put kids in the New York subway system, to use an exaggerated example," said Dr. Constance Vieland, head of staff development programs at the Wednesday meeting, "what we need, is a purpose behind what we do."

"We always talk of space and curriculum simultaneously," emphasized two PHS administrators, Dr. Frank Soda (dean of faculty) and George Petrillo (director of guidance), and J. Alfred Seitz, assistant principal, added, "You cannot separate Long and Short Range planning."

No Room. Over-crowding, or as the Report says "growing requirements for physical facilities," did however, prompt appointment of the citizens Long Range committee.

Wednesday, at the request of Superintendent Philip E. McPherson, PHS Principal Florence Burke once again patiently detailed con-

"SQUARE" ON TABLE

No Decision. North Square in Princeton is still on the table and not yet on Mt. Lucas Road.

The former 11-story Tower, now a $3.5 million trio of three-story buildings, was up before Township Committee Monday night on appeal from a rejection by the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

Township Site Plan Review had approved North Square plans, but the Regional Planning Board declined to accept the approval.

After three hours of legal argument in which almost every New Jersey court case was cited at least once — or so it seemed — Committee decided, by 3-2 vote, to table the question and talk it over in executive sessions.

Committeemen Thomas Hartmann and Jay Bleiman didn't want to table — they wanted a decision right now.

Mayor James A. Floyd said later, "This isn't something to mull over and vote on at midnight," and added that he anticipated a vote sometimes in February.

"Committee will work on this with all deliberate speed," he promised. "We won't let it drag on and on."

In appeals like this, no new evidence is allowed and the audience that filled Township Hall was treated once again to the questions of traffic and drainage that have become familiar to followers of the North Square serial and before that, the "Tower" cliff hanger.

A. C. Reeves Hicks, attorney for Collins, Uhl, Hoisington and Anderson, the embattled architect developers who want to build the towers, told Committee what he's told the planning board: "North Square, in the Service Zone, complies with the Township Zoning Ordinance of 1955."

In that ordinance the Service Zone is allowed a floor area ratio of 150%, whereas North Square has only 35%, Mr. Hicks said. (This means the floor space can be 150% of the area of the lot, which makes sense when you consider buildings with more than one story.) In the office-research zone, the floor-area ratio can be 75%.

"What else can be built here, if North Square is rejected?" he asked. "If you build houses, you generate traffic." (The audience laughed at that.)

As he referred occasionally to the fact that the area is zoned "Service" under the '55 ordinance Committeeman Thomas Hartmann demanded:

You mean I don't have the right to reject an antiquated 1955 zoning ordinance that I don't find in the public interest as a legislator? I have a responsibility to consider the public in 1971, as well as an ordinance from 1955."

Mr. Hicks agreed, and added, "Change the ordinance!"

He pointed to a map which shows that the same area is designated "Service" on the Township's newest Master Plan, the one from 1968.

But Hans K. Sander, chairman of the Township Planning Board, as well as the regional one, warned from the audience that zoning ordinance amendments are in the works these days, and that the draft for a new Service Zone doesn't have the same provisions as the current ordinance.

Cars. The traffic problem — which no one can deny" conceded Mr. Hicks — drew a question from Committeeman Dean Chace who said he couldn't picture the amount of blacktop necessary for the 572 cars that the zoning laws says must be provided for.

Mr. Sander offered as comparison the Springdale park log lot for graduate students, which holds 265 cars — about half as many.

Harrison Uhl, one of the architects, said the estimated 400 employees in the 89,000 square-foot buildings didn't need more than 400 parking spaces, and Mr. Hicks characterized the 572 requirement as "excessive."

Committeeman Jay Bleiman said the site plan review board, acknowledging the zoning requirements for parking, also seemed concerned over the amount of blacktop that would result.

Buildings, walks and parking, under present plans, cover 6.26 acres of the 12-acre site. About one acre is devoted to parking.

Blacktop is held to be damaging to drainage, especially in an area like this one where topsoil is thin and underlying rock impervious. Berms, dike-like strips of earth, would be used in this parking lot to facilitate drainage.

Go Below? Committeeman John D. Wallace asked whether the developers were ever asked to dig out underground parking? Mr. Hicks said no. In the case of the "Tower," ancester to North Square, the question of underground parking was raised, Mr. Sander said.

Mr. Hicks said it would be expensive. Rock in that area would be hard to blast, he suggested. The architects believe, Mr. Hicks told Committee, that the best way to cope with drainage when rock is so solid, is to "get the water out fast," so that water from higher land in the area's natural basin, could flow in.

A resident of Rocky Hill then asked who would pay for water damage in Rocky Hill, Princeton Township or the developer? He was chided by Township attorney Gordon Griffin who said, "You're assuming damage will occur!" and quoted Township Engineer Joseph Hodak as being less concerned about runoff than about sedimentation.

Protest. Opponents of North Square, represented by Samuel Lambert III, claimed that an office building of such scope is not a permitted use because the Service zone was designed for local services, "not corporate uses on a national scale."

Mr. Griffin replied that it was for the Zoning Board to decide whether any given use was "permitted."

John Bauman, 631 Mt. Lucas, who has been spokesman for the "Committee of Concerned Citizens" opposed to the projects, presented a memo reiterating the "CCC" position on traffic, drainage and ecology.

People talk about North Square as a rateable, he said. But major road alterations and "other additional services" could absorb any tax increases.

Administrator Joseph R. Nin estimated $120,000 a year in taxes from the $3.5 million building, but Committeeman Wallace cut short this part of the discussion by observing that rateables aren't germane to the appeal.

Mr. Hicks, during the evening, protested because the Planning Board buttressed its rejection by quoting from the preamble to the Site Plan ordinance. It is, he claimed, "outside the purview" of the ordinance.

(This preamble, entitled "Policy and Purpose," says non residential uses have a "substantial impact" on the character of the town and its traffic, utilities and property values. "Public health, safety and general welfare" are thereby affected," the statement says.)

In later comments on the vote to table the question, Mayor Floyd said Committee feels there are areas requiring further discussion, and he mentioned this Site Plan "preamble."

"The preamble speaks of the site plan ordinance as needed in order to provide efficient roads, make sure traffic moves, implement overall planning and serve public health, safety and welfare," the mayor quoted. "Is that preamble applicable here? What is the legality?

"We want to look at the whole site plan ordinance and procedures, including the procedures for appeal."

If Committee wants more facts, Attorney Griffin said Monday night, it can send the appeal back to the Planning Board. Mayor Floyd said he doubted Committee would do that.

Priorities for Princeton High School Debated

ditions at the school: crowded offices, like an old Groucho Marx movie . . . art courses that had to be cancelled despite great demand because there wasn't room . . . two chem. classes held in standard classrooms where no lab. demonstrations are possible. . . .

"We need room where teachers and students, or students and students, can relate on a one to one basis or in small groups," Miss Burke began. "We need places where work can be done informally. For Trade and Industry classes, we have no place where a teacher and student can talk confidentially about employment.

"In the library," she continued, "we need quiet study carrels, places where students can read or listen to tapes.

"Short range, if ten rooms could be freed, the school would be more liveable."

How? Solutions? Independent study freeing students from classrooms, is already attracting additional recruits . . . year-'round sessions . . . accredited summer school to push students ahead faster . . . some ninth-graders moved to John Witherspoon . . . or combinations.

"Double sessions are a last resort," Miss Burke stated, "they would be extremely devitalizing."

Students have talked it over in Wednesday Morning Workshops and 350 attended the first. E. Alden Dunham, of the Long Range Committee, addressed 81 students and headed around a discussion guide which served as basis for home-room talks. Two workshops have been set for this Wednesday.

Faculty discussions have been held, too. After Dr. McPherson gets reports on how the staff feels, he will make recommendations to the school board, probably in February.

"How about a 'free school'?" asked one Wednesday parent. "If 300 kids were interested, this could help over crowding by getting them out of the building."

"I am very enthusiastic about that," Dr. Soda replied, "there must always be some exploration going on — these are days for experimentation!"

"The word 'experiment' scares people," said Mrs. David Loye, uneasily. "There should be more explanation of new ideas."

"Are we going to continue in the same old pattern I had when I was in school, the same old box?" demanded Mrs. Richard Schach of the Wednesday gathering. "And how will it be different? If math, what kind? If English, how much?"

Mrs. Jane Jacobs, PHS English teacher, spoke out for "interest centers" rather than study halls, where kids could "turn free time into valuable time."

"What kind of school system do we want?" she continued. "The 'feely-touchy' kind or one with intellectual standards?"

And Dr. Vicland and Mrs. Schach, as the "experiment" discussion closed, agreed that "all education is an experiment."

Meeting "Aimless"? About halfway through on Thursday night, Dr. Magee said the meeting was "aimless and groping" because the school administration hadn't said what the future of the schools should be.

"We need this very badly" he declared. "If there are disagreements you'll hear them!"

Program and curriculum should come first and "everything else should follow," stated Mrs. George Fremon, former school board president.

"This should come from the faculty," she continued. "What would English and physics departments like? The faculty should be specific, to help the rest of us think and make judgments."

Mrs. Fremon was applauded.

Dr. Harvey Rothberg, also a former school board member, and Dr. Magee both said they agreed with her.

Although the meeting had been called to discuss finance (and governance), it was hard for the audience to respond, said Marshall Smith, Rosedale Road, because there wasn't much specific financial information.

"There's a lot of loose change," he said, "between the $1-2 million for a marginal PHS remodelling job, a $5-8 million major renovation and a $10 million new school.

"You get more bang for your buck with a new building," observed Frederick M. Bohen, Lang Range Committeeman.

He explained that, as the committee learned about "innovative curricular thinking" going on in the schools, "we realized the changes you could make in a 1925 building were not going to be 'marginal'."

"But there's a ceiling, financially, on which Princeton can do." He pointed out that, while Michigan, California, or New York contribute 30-40% to municipal school financing, New Jersey only dribbles in 10%.

Shortly after ten on Thursday night, with only 25 minutes to go, the meeting finally got around to "Governance."

That's a current educational word meaning "Who runs things and how?" and it's at the heart of today's concern about Princeton schools.

"What does the school system exist to do?" asked John Sapoch, who served as chairman, "and how should we allocate the human and financial resources to do it?"

William Selden, chairman of the Long Range group, said PHS used to be run in ways that were "more or less authoritarian", and that a heritage of these times still persisted.

"We need to encourage an atmosphere in which faculty can have their suggestions heard and implemented," he proposed.

Mrs. Doris Peskin, PHS teacher, said authoritarianism "doesn't work, and is breaking down. We're groping for a democaratic system. . . .

But Dr. Magee said "democratization can be wrong — you can't listen to the majority all the time."

"Yes, he said, we should "listen to the voice of the young, but adults must assume accountability. There must be an administrator who sets objectives, responds to voices in the community and says 'I'm in charge', not someone who waits for teachers or students to speak."

Mr. Bohen closed the meeting by saying the Long Range group wants "mechanisms for students to be consulted and for students and faculty to be concerned on broad curriculum issues. The history of authoritarianism at the high school should be challenged."

KEEP GRASS GREEN?

School Board Wooders. The school board adopted its own budget Tuesday night — unanimously. Mrs. Kathleen Edwards absent — and then went on, in agenda session, to talk about watering the lawn.

Underground sprinklers for part of the high school's athletic fields were the subject. The schools' consultant architect, Collins, Uhl, Hoisington and Anderson, recommends the springlers because bids came in $3,000 under the estimated amount, and the firm's engineer says grab it while you can. The first phase would cost $6,000.

"Why do we want this?" asked board member Henry Powsner. "I'm turned off by the idea of sprinklers."

PHS Principal Florence Burke explained that school fields are used hard all day every day — first for phys. ed. classes and after school, for athletics.

"We need a maintenance plan," she said, "so we won't have to begin all over again every few years when the fields deteriorate."

William Karch, manager of facilities services, nodded agreement. Natural rain meant no watering in 1970, but 1969 took a lot of lawn watering to keep fields in shape.

He added that the schools borrow, free, Township equipment to apply lime and fertilizer. He assured board member Winthrop Pike outlets could be driven over by a tractor or skipped over by a young athlete.

Also at the agenda session, William Evans, board secretary and business manager, announced joint School-Borough-Township purchase of gasoline for 14½c per gallon, at a savings to all.

The board welcomed back Melvin Jones to his PHS Mechanical Arts teaching post. He had been on leave since autumn following an automobile accident and was, according to Miss Burke, "fighting to get back in the classroom."

At next Tuesday's regular public meeting, the board will discuss driver's ed. classes, the school-Princeton University program and the February 2 budget election.

Governor William Cahill still hasn't promulgated official census figures. Mr. Evans reminded the board that Judge Frank Kingfield has said he would consider again the complex question of a school-board election date if the Governor still hasn't acted by January 30.

THROW BOTTLE AWAY? Or Return It? About two dozen representatives of bottling companies and Princeton stores sat down in Borough Hall Tuesday night to discuss the economics and ecology of the non-returnable bottle with mayor and Council.

Also in attendance were Princeton residents concerned about ecology, and hopeful Council will seriously consider an ordinance similar to one in Bowie, Maryland, banning the non-returnable and Teachers' Opinions?

At Tuesday's agenda meeting, school board members began talking about Long Range planning, expressing concern that as President John Marks said, the public doesn't seem to be responding."

Henry Powsner quoted favorably the suggestion of Mrs. George Fremon at last Thursday's Long Range meeting that PHS faculty be asked specifically what they want in their courses.

Faculty were interviewed by Long Range committee members, but it was agreed that replies would be confidential. Board member William Marvel and Superintendent Philip E. McPherson spoke highly of these faculty comments and said they would like to get the remarks publicized without violating the confidences.

"I wish we could mine this treasure!" exclaimed Dr. Marvel.

"Specific suggestions from the faculty would satisfy townspeople who don't think the report has enough specific suggestions," Dr. Powsner said.

loss-away bottle.

It's a matter of educating the public, commented one Princeton liquor dealer. Bottling company representatives agreed.

The Canada Dry man, who happens to live in Princeton, said more sophisticated technology is the answer. He told Council the United States is 50 years behind the times, and he mentioned high-temperature incinerators in the Netherlands and Belgium, that generate electricity and steam while they consume containers.

Increased deposits on bottles stifle sales, said the Pepsi Cola man. He said the soft drink industry is "definitely against" the idea of compulsory returnable bottles.

"If we had this law," said a liquor dealer sadly, "people would just go to West Windsor or Lawrence to buy ..."

THREE CARS COLLIDE. At Mercer and Alexander Three cars, including a sports car and a small car, were involved in an accident shortly after noon Tuesday at the intersection of Mercer and Alexander streets.

Pfc. Bernard Lenhard, 25, of Morrisville, charged William R. Murdock, Pa., 38, 205 Moore Street, with failure to yield to approach of a third car stopped at the

According to the police report, Mr. Murdock was turning left from Mercer onto Alexander. He told police that vision had been blocked by a minibus in front of him. In turning he cut in front of a car operated by Richard S. Dentel, 19, of Morrisville, Pa. The collision forced the Murdock car into the front end of Alexander Street, damaging its front end slightly. It was driven by Arlene L. Miller, 39, 2 University Way, Princeton Junction.

EATING CLUBS TAXABLE? Probably, Borough Believes. Uneasy about losing around $80,000 in good solid tax dollars if a proposed state law says organizations like the University's eating clubs are tax-exempt, Borough Council has asked its attorney Gordon Griffin, for an opinion.

Mr. Griffin thinks the clubs, as real estate, can indeed be taxed. The proposed law deals with fraternal organizations. Mr. Griffin says it's possible to distinguish clubs that are organized for charitable purposes, from those that aren't.

William Schluter, Assembly man sponsoring the legislation is now working on new language that would amend the bill so that eating clubs wouldn't be tax exempt. Mr. Griffin's opinion will be sent along to give Mr. Schluter a hand.

HEALTH BOARD EXPANDED. Charles Meyer Named. Township Committee unanimously expanded the municipality's Board of Health from five to seven members Monday night, and Democratic Mayor James A. Floyd moved across party lines to appoint Charles Meyer, 90 Dodds Lane, as one of the two new members.

Mr. Meyer was the Republican candidate for Township Committee defeated last fall by Committeeman Jay Bielman. He is vice president in charge of sales and a member of the board of directors of Ethicon, the surgical sutures subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson.

The second additional Board of Health member is Dr. Chester Peterson, dentist, who lives at 191 Mt. Lucas Road. Both men were named to three year terms.

Opposition. The only opposition to expanded membership came from Dr. William Kleinberg, who was not reappointed to the board by Mayor Floyd when his terms expired December 31.

Citing his 20 years on the Board of Health, he accused Committee of "putting nontechnical people on the board to satisfy political debts or for other reasons," and said the expansion was a "purposeless step."

Health board members had been pressured by the League of Women Voters to agree to a merger with the Borough Board of Health, he said, charging that "Township Committee went along" with those pressures.

He referred to the "so called studies" of the League in which Borough Township health board merger was recommended and said that Mrs. Harold Sprnut, chief author of the League's report who was named to the Township Board of Health by Mayor Floyd on CHITTY-CHITTY BANG BANG! That's Tim Kingston at the controls of the fabulous machine, with David Kingston as rear guard. Lined up to watch the take-off are Dawn Gray, Dorothy Graaskamp and Stephen Tully. "Chitty-Chitty, Bang Bang!" will be shown this Saturday at the Princeton Playhouse to benefit the scholarship fund at Trinity All Saints' Nursery School.

News Of The THEATRES

READY FOR "CHITTY?"

Film Benefits School. School arships at Trinity AllSaints' Nursery School will benefit from the single showing of "Chitty Chitty, Bang Bang!," the fantasy for, as they say, young and old.

The film will be shown this Saturday at the Princeton Playhouse at 2 p.m. Tickets are on sale at Hulit's, Center Stationers, Marsh's Pharmacy in the Montgomery Shopping Center, and will be available at the box office on Saturday.

LAST "RAISIN"

Cast Change. The final performance of McCarter's repertory production of Lorraine Hansberry's "Raisin in the Sun" will be given this Sunday at a 3 p.m. matinee.

In the weeks since "Raisin" opened, the role of Ruth Younger has been taken over by Vera Marcus, a student at Princeton University and a member of the Harambee House players.

Miss Marcus, one of the first co eds to appear in a Princeton Triangle Club show, was also featured in "How Many Broken Wings?" the recent Harambee House production. She did the one-woman play "Sister Sonji" in that offering, and designed costumes for the whole production as well.

Also in McCarter's "Raisin" are Delores Martin as Lena Younger; and Fred Morsell as her son Walter Lee. Mr. Morsell will play the title role in McCarter's "Macbeth," scheduel to open next weekend.

Tazewell Thompson plays the younger Nigerian, Asagai; Jan Davis is Beneatha; Tenny son Moore is George Murchison and Richard Pilcher is Karl Lindner.

Tickets are on sale at the McCarter box-office.

VERSATILE ELLINGTON

Prolific, too. Versatile and prolific in his musical compositions Duke Ellington can write "Don't Get Around Much Any More" or a collection of Shakespearean vignettes called "Such Suite Thunder."

The Duke will come with his orchestra to McCarter Theatre on Saturday, January 30 at 8:30. Tickets are on sale at the box office.

Other Ellington compositions are "I'm Beginning to See the Light;" "The Liberian Suite," commissioned by the Liberian Government; the instrumental wark "Black, Brown and Beige;" Sophisticated Lady;" "Harlem," which was commissioned by Arturo Toscanini; "Mood Indigo;" "Suite Thursday;" "Black and Tan Fantasy;" "Rockin' in Rhythm. . ."

THEATRE FOR CHILDREN

"Paper Bag Players." An original show developed by the players themselves — songs, stories, jokes, poems, pantomimes and vaudeville, home-style. That's "Hot Feet," a show for youngsters which will be given two performances at McCarter on Saturday, February 13 at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Last spring, Paper Bag's company came to McCarter with "Dandelion." That's only one of the seven original productions created by the Paper Bags since they were formed ten years ago.

For the past two years, The Paper Bag Players have appeared at the Royal Court Theatre, London. Just recently, they concluded a two-week holiday engagement at Hunter College and last fall, they performed in Osaka at "Expo 70."

"CURIOUS (YELLOW)"

At McCarter. "I Am Curious (Yellow)," the controversial Swedish film from 1967, will be shown twice (7 and 9:15 p.m.) at McCarter on Tuesday, February 9 as part of the New Cinema Series. No one under 17 will be admitted.

Court actions followed release of the film nearly four years ago, but since that time, courts have widely held that the film is non-pornographic.

Another in McCarter's series of experimental and independent films by West Coast filmmakers, "Avant-Garde West," will be screened on Monday, February 22 at 8 p.m.

The program will feature representative works by many artists including James Whitney, who works with computers in making his films, and James Broughton, maker of "The Bed," which McCarter audiences saw last spring.

Tickets for "I Am Curious (Yellow)" and "Avant-Garde West" are now on sale, but seats are unreserved.

NEW FACES

For Spring. Two Princeton residents will join McCarter's spring entourage for the weeks of repertory that will begin February 12 with the world premiere of "Caesar at the Rubicon."

They are Scotty Bloch, professional actress who lives in Princeton and who will be remembered by Theatre Intime audiences for her portrayal of Mary Tyrone in O'Neill's "Long Day's Journey Into Night."

The other is Brock Putnam, son of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Putnam, a young actor who's a graduate of Amherst. He spent last summer with the Williams town Theatre in Williamstown, Mass., and has been active in many phases of theatre.

Other newcomers are Ed Hooks, known to TV commercial watchers as the man in bandages for Hai Karate. He also created over a dozen off-off Broadway roles during the last year.

Donald Gantry, a seasoned repertory actor, has appeared recently in Cincinnati's Playhouse in the Park and has also performed with the American Shakespeare Festival, on television and in many Broadway and off Broadway productions.

Allee Elliott has toured the country in repertory, childen's theatre and, in New York, off-off Broadway. Her adventures as a young actress are described in the February issue of Cosmopolitan magazine.

Joan Weisberg, graduate of the Yale Drama Schools, has been a member of the National Shakespeare Company. Singer as well as actress, she toured in "Cabaret" in 1969 70.

Richard Jamieson, completing his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin, recently played Cladius in "Rosencrantz & Guildenstern Are Dead" at the Hartford Stage Company, and he spent several seasons with the Utah Shakespeare Festival, which he will join again next summer as associate director.

Actor, director and puppeteer, "Mac" McMillan has most recently, played Estragon in "Waiting for Godot" at Boston's Charles Playhouse.

The newcomers' roster concludes with Lloyd Williamson, who spent last summer with the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, and previous summers as actor, dancer and choreographer with the Shawnee Summer Theatre in Indiana, and Bob Schmidhauer who appeared last season in McCarter's "Troilus and Cressida."

GARDEN & PRINCE

Diary of a Mad Housewife (now playing) concerns a woman who is a slave to her young daughters, her Manhattan apartment and her social-climbing husband. She is essentially a Women's Lib caricature.

Carrie Snodgress plays the title role. Richard Benjamin is the unpleasant husband who makes her a laughing

FORGET THE ROOM

Frame The Art! Fleurette Faus and Hal Burnet of Gallery 100, Nassau Street, went out to Rossmoor the other day and talked about framing.

They circulated a group of paintings, watercolors and etchings through the audience. Using sample corners of frames, they then launched into a discussion of the various frame styles - Baroque, 18th Century French, contemporary metals, wormy woods, and the new, hot-color painted frames among them.

Framing the art work, they showed how the various forms blended or conflicted with a painting, and then made a frame in a step-by-step process using the do-it yourself metal section frames.

"Forget the room," Mrs. Faus advises. "Frame the art to its best advantage. Rather than matching a frame to a blue velvet couch, try to blend the frame with the art work. The best framing isn't even visible. It's there - but your eye is led to art."

At Gallery 100, all of the framing is done in a work shop room upstairs, overlooking Nassau Street. Mr. Burnet, an artist himself, is in charge and seconds Mrs. Faus' work downstairs with customers as well.

It may seem curious to some, but to the knowing the craftsmanship in making a frame is as important as the frame itself. The key craftsmen at Gallery 100 are William Bowser who mans the saw, ensuring that the corners are joined with no visible cracks, and Jack Williamson, the man with the skill to cut the matts with true angles, as well as the glass and the backing.

THE FRAMERS: Hal Burnet and Fleurette Faus of Gallery 100 even frame themselves from time to time, on request from a photographer. Free-standing framing, it's called. For the Gallery's standard framing process, see It's New to Us.

Also Ruth Donahue, who had her own frame shop at one time in Illinois, takes the miscellany of art, frame, matt and backing and puts it together, accurately measured and without a speck of dust. And then there's Brad Faus who does the taping, wiring, bagging and customer notification.

The Gallery's newest frames, by the way, are simple, flat cut woods painted in your choice from an extraordinary range of colors - some 100 plus to choose from, including some hot, almost neon shades. We know of a woman who grouped on one wall nearly 30 of her favorite photos of the family, taken over the years. All black-and-white pictures, she framed each one in slim, scarlet frames, for a very striking effect.

QIANA CLOTH

And Bold Piques. The time has come to overlook the snow and the ruts in the driveway and concentrate on the benign environment of spring.

We went into the Fabric Shop on Chambers Street and did just this, finding ourselves welcomed by beautiful, joyous prints in spring flower colors, almost all in washable, packable fabrics.

Qiana cloth is well worth investigating for a special dress or for a tunic and pants outfit. It looks and feels like silk surah. Among the very contemporary designs is an all over pattern of clusters of black rings against a white background. (45-in. wide, $8 yd.)

Cottons are hard to find these days, but the Fabric Shop has come across some interesting heavy piques. The natural fabrics are so beautiful that we hope the polyesters and dacrons don't completely take over. Among the piques - all prints in bold designs - there's a whooping print with four large dots of neon color in the centers of a black diamond. Another, which we also found in a fashion magazine, features red apples here and there, and navy blue leaves. The Fabric Shop also has cotton quiltings in various prints for wrap-around skirts to wear three seasons of the year.

We got to talking to Mrs. Lucille Carnevale, co-owner with Mrs. Eleanor Nelson, about today's styles and fabrics costs. So many of the customers are interested in making pants and tops that she suggests making one pair of pants and several of tops to go with it. The need for close tailoring of the pants is much less if you use a knit fabric.

Knits at the Fabric Shop are lovely. Expensive - but so little is needed, and it is washable. Most are 60-inches wide, ranging in price from $7 to $12 a yard. The average woman needs one and a quarter yards for a pair of pants and a yard for a short sleeved tunic. The knits come in coordinates, and if you choose a solid color for the pants, the

SPEAKER IS KEY

To Stereo Pleasure Technical terms used in the electronics world for stereo equipment throw people at first: sub color, circuit modules, audio frequency range, five-zone sound effect amplifier, 1,000 Hz controls, high end response, for instance.

But after you have talked to Walter Hickman of The Stereo Center and to his audio manager, Dave Griffin, you know nearly as much as they do. The various companies are issuing very comprehensive information sheets, too, and the Stereo Center has them in fair quantity.

Located in the Montgomery Shopping Center, Route 206, the Stereo Center carries JVC, Sony Marantz, Sansui, Pioneer, Ampex, Dual and Garrard stereo equipment. You can also order Andrea TV, the millionaire's joy.

When you are talking stereo, you are discussing anywheres from $230 to $1,000, which puts you in the position of making a lifetime investment.

One of the first things we ask," Mr. Hickman says, "is 'what is your budget?' You can start a component system for as low as $230, buying a receiver, a pair of speakers and a turntable. The average system is about $500.

"The speaker is the weakest link, engineering-wise, in my system," he adds. "It is more important than the turntable or the amplifier or the receiver."

The speaker is so important that the Stereo Center has a special room where you can sit down and listen while various speakers are turned on for you. The room is average size, duplicating as nearly as possible conditions at home.

One of the most popular of the new speakers is the spherical version made by JVC, which radiates sound 360 degrees from its slim stem base or hanging cord. Another is the new type invented by Dr. Amar Bose of Cambridge with incredible sound and a reasonable price ($176 for a pair).

The Stereo Center also has the JVC color TV that Mr. Hickman says has been rated Number One by an electronics industry association. An attrac...

...ve set with an 18 inch screen. It can be taken home and plugged in without any special installations. It automatically adjusts color after you set it to suit you, and it brings in a very wide range of stations.

We are not a TV dealer," Mr. Hickman comments. "We carry the best primarily for our clients. (When we opened a year and a half ago, they were our customers. Now they're our clients because they come back for our advice.)

The location of speakers to get back to that key item, depends on the size of the room, how it is furnished and shaped. "We install when we are asked to, but most people want to do it themselves."

The Stereo Center prides itself on the quality of the lines it carries, not only because a stereo set is a major investment, but also because the Center does servicing free of charge. "We have chosen the equipment that holds up the best," Mr. Hickman says. An electronics technician for many years, he may be just the man for you to talk to.

...stock to her children, and Frank Langella is the surly lover she takes in an attempt at self-fulfillment.

The picture has tricky color camera work, a wild party sequence set to rock music, love scenes played in the buff and the dialogue runs rampant with profanity. Miss Snodgress suffers nobly through it all.

PLAYHOUSE

The Twelve Chairs (now playing) is something like the old time silent comedies — a simple situation that grows into a series of skits.

The story concerns a search in Russia during 1927 for a dozen chairs formerly owned by aristocrats — one of the chairs contains a fortune in jewels. Ron Moody, who was Fagin in "Oliver!," is the ex nobleman engaged in the hunt. His scrounging life in Communist Russia has turned him into a kind of wild animal, and he pants and snarls in a very expressive comic performance — much like the silent screen.

Frank Langella (the writer in "Dairy of a Mad Housewife) is his companion in the search for the jewels. He's a hand some beggar with engaging insouciance. And pitted against them is a greedy priest acted by Dom DeLuise in a broadly hilarious style.

Mel Brooks wrote the script, directed and also plays a minor role in the beginning film as the former servant of Moody — a fellow so slavish he welcomes even punishment from his one-time master. Brooks is a very funny man in all three roles.

FOUR NEW EAGLE SCOUTS: Denois Skillman, Douglas Westover, Richard Silverman and Lee Costa have all been awarded their Eagle Badges for service with Boy Scout Troop No. 77

Topics Of The Town

January 1, "never had time to meet with me" to discuss the pros and cons of merger.

Dr. Kleinberg said he still believed that was "no advantage in proceeding with merger" and pointed out that the Borough Board of Health had "no interest" in the matter, either.

Support. Committee's action was supported by the League, whose officers stated in a letter that a larger board would allow "different elements of our population" to study a wider variety of health problems than has been possible in the past.

The League also suggested that four-out-of-seven was an easier quorum than three-out-of-five, and said the smaller board had sometimes been unable to act because a quorum was not present.

In similar action, Committee passed a resolution increasing membership on the Local Assistance Board (welfare) from three to five. One of the five, the resolution states, must be a woman, and one member with only a one-year term, can be a member of Township Committee.

FOUR SCOUTS HONORED

Awarded Eagle Badges. At a Court of Honor meeting held by Boy Scout Troop No. 77, four Scouts were presented the Eagle Scout award, scouting's highest honor.

The Scouts were Douglas Westover, 38 Philip Drive, son of Troop Scoutmaster and Mrs. Robert Westover; Richard I. Silverman, 72 Philip Drive, son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin K. Silverman; Lee Costa, 28 Maple Avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Costa; and Dennis Skillman, 98 Magnolia Lane, son of Troop Chairman and Mrs. Woody Skillman.

Doug Westover, 18, has been associated with Troop No. 77 for seven years and is now a freshman in Engineering at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Dick Silverman, also 18, has been with the troop for the same length of time and is now a freshman in Biomedical Engineering at Tufts University. Lee Costa, 17, has been in No. 77 for six years and is a senior at Princeton High School, where he is currently co-captain of the wrestling team. Dennis Skillman, only 14, has been in scouting only three-and-a-half years and is a student at Valley Road School.

All four boys earned their Eagle rank by learning the skills necessary to achieve more than the required number of Merit Badges, by engaging actively in camping and community activities, by providing leadership for younger scouts, and by completing a lengthy Community Service project for the Princeton police department. They have all been to a summer camping expedition, to Philmont, the National Boy Scout camp, in Cimarron, New Mexico.

BANK IS EMPTIED

By Bomb Treat. The First National Bank was emptied Friday morning while police and bank officials searched for a bomb that a caller had said would go off.

Gerald Dollar, the bank's security officer, called Borough police at 10:41 to report the bank had just received a call from a male voice saying that a bomb was going to go off. All patrol cars responded and police kept customers from entering while the bank was searched. No bomb was found.

SPARE TIRE STOLEN

From Meter Repair Truck. A spare tire and wheel valued at $50 was stolen Thursday morning from the Borough meter repair truck while it was parked in a Tulane Street lot.

Police said the truck had been unlocked. John Jackson reported the theft.

Michael T. Boyers, a student of the IBM Corporation, reported on Friday the theft of his overcoat from a second-floor lounge in the IBM Building, 22 Chambers Street. He valued it at $166.

Borough police also report the theft last week of a $400 amplifier from the Tower Club, 13 Prospect Avenue.

PANTS SUITS SHOPLIFTED

From Landau's. Borough police picked up two suspects Monday in the shoplifting of two pants suits from Landau's, 114 Nassau Street, but officals of the store were not able to make positive identification.

The owner told Sgt. Robert Anderson that four teenage girls had been trying on several dresses, and the suits were discovered missing 20 minutes after they had left. The girls were seen entering a blue Dodge. Two of them were later apprehended by Sgt. Anderson sitting in the car on Nassau Street.

Watch Theft Falls. The attempted theft of wrist watches from a display window at Edward's Jewelers, Princeton Shopping Center, failed when the thief dropped them while fleeing a Township patrolman.

Pfl. Robert Neilson reported that while on patrol at the center at 12 40 Sunday morning he noticed a man stooping by a smashed window at the jewelry store The suspect fled on foot and escaped through the shopping center mall and parking lot.

While fleeing he dropped his cap and brown corduroy coat containing the watches. Pfl. Neilson reported the thief had used a bicycle rack to smash a five by eleven foot display window.

He described him as a neg ro about six feet tall medium stature wearing a pea cap.

CAR HITS POLE

Skids on Nassau St. Ice, Maurice G. Dawson, 24 64 Witmer Court, was taken to Princeton Hospital in an ambulence for treatment of minor injuries, after his car skidded on the ice early Friday morning on Nassau Street near Princeton Avenue. Pfl. James Agins described road conditions at the scene as "one sheet of ice."

Mr. Dawson complained of a pain in the head and received bruises of the right leg. He told police that as he attempted to pass a car that had slowed to make a turn, "all of a sudden I couldn't do anything with my car."

It slid across the road jumped the curb and struck a pub lic service pole and bounced off. The top of the pole was broken off.

Car Overturns. Ester Sellers, 28, 68 Birch, escaped injury when her small foreign car went out of control on State Road Thursday, went down an embankment and flipped over on its roof.

She told Pfl. Olindo Carnevale that she was near the intersection of Terhune Road when her car went out of control and started to skid She lost control on the wet and snowy roadway.

THOU SHALL NOT STEAL

Minister's Wallet Taken. A Titusville minister has signed a complaint summons against the person who allegedly stole his wallet last week.

Norman Madsen minister of the Titusville Methodist Church, told Borough police that a man came in and picked up his wallet from a bench while he was playing ball Saturday in the Princeton Semin ary gymnasium. The suspect ran out of the gym, jumped into a car and drove down Hibben Road Mr Madsen told police that the wallet only contained $2 but had important personal papers in it.

At police headquarters Rev Madsen identified the suspect as Conway McGowan from photos shown him by police Ten minutes later McGowan, 22, called police to report that he had been in the gym and had picked up the wrong wallet by mistake. Police asked him to come to headquarters and he agreed. He never appeared.

On Monday, M Gowan, who gave police a Trenton adress called again to explain his failure to appear; he had misplaced the wallet but when he finds it he will return it. Police, meanwhile have been unable to locate him.

Police have issued a warrant, charging him with larceny, chief Peter J. McGrohan said. He added that two other summonses are waiting to be served on McGowan, whom he described as a habitual offender.

"Support United Fund"

"Real human problems" come under the United Fund budget this year as never before, said Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley this week, urging community contributions to make up the $90,000 the Fund still needs to meet its goal.

The Princeton Youth Center with a $36,000 allocation from the Fund is "Number One" the mayor said. This is the first year of Fund support for the Center.

"291 Witherspoon Street," the Child Guidance house whose mission is the drug abuse problem, was named by the mayor, also. It received $10,000 in Fund money last year, but it's supported from an emergency allocation and is not a "line" item. Child Guidance has asked both Borough and Township, and presumably the Fund, for $20,000 this year.

Mayor Cawley was Chairman of the United Fund Budget Committee for the 1969 and 1970 budgets and served on the Committee for several years prior to his chairmanship.

BIRTHS

Twelve Are Born. Seven boys and five girls were born last week at Princeton Hospital.

A Growing Concern.

Nassau Savings is pleased to present its report of another record year of growth! A year in which savers of the Princeton area helped send assets to an all-time high of $15,199,450, representing an increase of more than 16% over last year's figure. And during the same period, Nassau savers received the greatest dividend distribution in the Association's history.

We are proud of the loyal support so many people have given us and in return for their confidence, we assure that our members will always receive the dedicated service that they deserve.

We extend a cordial invitation to everyone to come grow with us — and let their money grow at the highest rates in the country!

USE COMMON SENSE

When Ice Skating. It isn't often a lake is as forgiving as Carnegie Lake last week when three persons were rescued after ialing through the ice.

All of the victims were skating outside designated safe areas when they fell in, according to R. Donald Barr, director of the Princeton Recreation Program. Ice is tested three times a day for safety by Sgt. Jack Petrone of the Township police but only in the areas shown on the map this page.

What it boils down to is that ice safety is everybody's business and calls for common sense such as skating only in safe areas and never skating alone. For those who want to take advantage of skating on the lake there are presently two ways of determining if the ice is safe.

One is the long-established system wherein a white flag means the ice is safe, a red flag the opposite. Flags are poles located at the rear of the Hibben Apartments, on the posted during the winter at south side of the lake between Washington Road Bridge and Harrison Street and opposite Longview Drive, next to the sailboat dock off the Princeton-Kingston Road and the flagpole atop the Princeton University crew house.

A second way is to call the Princeton Recreation Department at 921-9480 which has installed a 24-hour coded-phone that gives the latest ice condition. Skaters are requested not to call Borough or Township police departments for information.

Basic Safety Rules. The Recreation Department has listed basic safety rules that it urges everyone to keep in mind while skating on the lake. They are:

- Skate only when the white flags are up.
- Keep away from red flags placed in areas where the ice is thin.
- Do not skate under the bridges.
- Do not skate or walk on the canal at anytime.
- Never skate alone.
- Skate only in safe area designated by orange pennants.
- Report all unsafe spots to the police so that warning flags can be placed.

Ringing the lake at strategic places are red-painted posts containing 60 feet of rope and a ring buoy for emergency use. A five-minute film, "Ice Rescue," depicting various techniques of rescuing victims who have fallen through the ice may be obtained by groups from the American Red Cross on Harrison Street. The film is highly recommended by the Recreation Department.

In addition, a sheet on ice skating safety including a step-by-step description of how to throw a buoy properly may be obtained from the Recreation Department in Township Hall.

MONEY FOR THE BATTLEFIELD: Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen, a member of the New Jersey Historical Trust, receives a check for $1,000 from William P. Starr, president of the Princeton Battlefield Area Preservation Society, as part of the society's campaign to "save" the battlefield. Specifically, the "Weller Tract." More than $35,000 has been raised to date. Contributions may be made to the Society, P.O. Box 1776, Princeton.

Hospital Short of Goal

Princeton Hospital is still about $50,000 short of its goal of $235,000 needed to launch construction of a new emergency care center.

"Additional gifts continue to come in, but we feel the community hasn't had time to react fully to our need as revealed recently," said George W. Conover, president of the Board of Trustees.

Contributions may be sent to the Princeton Hospital Annual Fund, Princeton. The current drive ends February 22.

PRINCETON BATTLEFIELD

"A National Registered Historic Landmark in Clear and Present Danger"

— National Park Department Category No. 1

One hundred and ninety-four years ago on January 3, 1777, the Battle of Princeton turned the tide of the Revolution. It was due to George Washington's personal bravery and cleverness (the British called him "The Fox") that the Americans won the encounter.

At the time of the battle, the land between the Clark farm (still standing) and the Quaker Meeting was open field. The troop movements at the beginning of the battle, and Washington's "Fox Chase" at the end, were both across the present "Weller Tract". The Clark farm, the ridge which sheltered the Americans as they moved toward Princeton, the woods behind the Quaker Meeting, and the orchards and buildings of the time played a prominent part in the battle strategy and movement, which flowed across a large area.

Today, most of the site of the battle is under houses. A group of local citizens is trying to preserve the small remaining area of the battlefield outside the present Park. The purposes of the Society are: Preservation and enlargement of the historic battlefield site; conservation of the Stony Brook valley open space; preservation and restoration of historic buildings in the area.

The immediate focus is 12 acres, between the Quaker Meeting and the existing Battlefield Park, known as the "Weller Tract" which is owned by the Institute for Advanced Study on which the Institute is preparing to build six faculty houses. The area under present danger involves 4½ acres in an area where the Institute owns 800 acres.

Once lost, our present opportunity can never be regained. To introduce houses, garages, cars, signs, roads, and telephone poles in the middle of this historic area can only be destructive to a place which is unchanged since the 18th century.

State and national interest has focused on Princeton's fight to preserve the area. Application for federal funds has been filed regarding this endangered site, the only remaining Revolutionary battlefield in New Jersey without adequate protection.

Ten Days' Campaign: Area remaining — Trenton, 0 acres; Princeton, 39 acres; Monmouth, 1,300 acres.

WILL YOU HELP?

The matter is urgent, since the land of the "Weller Tract" is under consideration for re-zoning, to be followed by immediate construction.

IF YOU CARE:

- Join our Society by filling out the coupon.
- Call or write your Township or Borough Committeemen or the Mayor.

JAMES S. 1777 MURAL, RECOGNITION OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS ACROSS STONY BROOK

PRINCETON BATTLEFIELD AREA PRESERVATION SOCIETY

- "Princeton Monthly Meeting hereby espresses its concern that public statements have been made that this Meeting had accepted a compromise plan for the Weller tract (article, dated August 2, 1970, in the Sunday Star-Ledger, by Mr. Perry Garfinkel). It is true that in the Summer and Fall of 1969 numerous plans were presented to the Meeting for consideration. Lively discussion in seeking unity found us close to agreement in accepting what appeared at the time to be a viable but uncomfortable alternative for the use of the woods close to our property. This indeed occurred before the State of New Jersey became seriously involved.

"The Meeting wishes to make it clear that we are anxious to have the land surrounding the Meeting House be used in such a manner as to be in harmony with our historical heritage and the relevant responsibility of being a good neighbor. The Meeting's present membership feels a keen sense of awareness of our involvement in the Princeton area from 1726 to the present.

"It is hoped that this minute serves the purpose of clarification for the continuing deliberations on the future of this historical land." (E. Donald Gustafson, Clerk, to Mr. Richard J. Sullivan, 9/14/70)

- "Adverse effect occurs under conditions which include but are not limited to: a) Destruction or alteration of all or part of a property; b) Isolation from or alteration of its surrounding environment; c) Introduction of visual audible or atmospheric elements that are out of character with the property and its setting." (Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, U.S. Department of the Interior, 5/2/68)

- "The Township Committee may legally be able to rezone the Weller tract, but it should consider whether it is right to do so, in view of its importance.

"It must weigh the interests of a few hundred people over the national interest

"The Committee is being asked to rezone it for the benefit of a small private group over the rights of the entire town, state and nation."

(Kenneth Hirsch, Bicentennial Chrm., League of Historical Societies of New Jersey 1/12/71.)

- Write to the State of New Jersey expressing your interest in the preservation of this historic battlefield site, especially the Weller Tract.

CHAMBER NAMES DODDS

As "Man of the Year." Harold W. Dodds, former president of Princeton University, was honored Saturday night as the Princeton Chamber of Commerce's 1971 Man of the Year. About 250 people attended the annual dinner dance held at the Nassau Inn.

His citation read in part "Long active in the field of education both at the secondary school level and in higher education, Dr. Dodds, despite his retirement as the 15th President of Princeton University in 1957, has continued to make significant contributions both here and abroad. He has served as an advisor to four U.S Presidents.

profit tuition free community school founded by The Black Youth Organization, Inc. and is serving to educate children in the greater Newark area. The Association of Black Seminarians is asking for books for any age level and covering any subject, or for a cash contribution to be used to buy textbooks.

If you would like to help The CHAD School Library grow, please call 921 8300, or mail your contribution to: Association of Black Seminarians, Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton. Books will be picked up at your convenience.

"His widely referenced analysis of the office of college president, a book entitled "The Academic President: Educator or Caretaker," was published in 1962 under a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York. Having served for many years as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Hun School, Dr. Dodds was a logical choice when two to cat secondary schools needed an educator to help with the study of merger possibilities, and he became the Presiding head of the Board of Trustees of the Princeton Day Schools, inc Subsequently, Miss Fine's School for girls and the Princeton Country Day School for boys became a single co educational secondary school from Kindergarten through 12th grade at a new site in Princeton.

"In 1965, eight years after his statutory retirement from Princeton University, Dr. Dodds accepted the Chairmanship of the Citizens for Mercer County Community College, a non political group concerned with strengthening understanding of the importance of a community college in Mercer County, an area which has had a considerable increase in the size of the research and development activity and of the demand for educated people Since then plans for the Mercer County Community College have progressed and 2200 full time plus 2500 part time students are now enrolled there

Born in Utica, Pennsylvania, June 28, 1889, the son of a noted Presbyterian minister Harold Dodds was graduated with Phi Beta Kappa honors from Grove City College in 1909 He taught Latin and English for two years in Pennsylvania high schools and then went on to receive his Master of Arts degree from Princeton in 1914 and the Doctorate of Philosophy in Political Science from the University of Pennsylvania in 1917. And most significantly — on Christmas Day, 1917, he married the former Miss Margaret Murray of Halifax, Nova Scotia, who has been his helpful companion ever since

Dr Dodds then served briefly on the faculties of five universities Purdue West Virginia Reserve, Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, and New York University before he was called to Princeton in 1925 to teach municipal government and public administration.

"Dr. Dodds often maintained that 'an academic social scientist is improved by some contact with practice' he has never failed to exemplify this belief."

Past recipients of this award are: Lee H. Bristol, Jr. J. Douglas Brown, II, Frank in Bunn, George W Conover, George R. Cook III, Elmer Engstrom, George Gallup, Robert F Goheen and Eugene V. Wigner.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

For Work at Ft. Dix.

Through the Princeton Chapter of American Red Cross, Walson Army Hospital at Fort Dix has sent out an urgent call for many more volunteers.

At Walson Hospital volunteers not only help with recreation, but they serve in many other areas; clinics, libraries, food service, field office, pharmacy, record desk and award assistants.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Albert Lappman, volunteers from the area served by Princeton Red Cross assist at Walson Army Hospital every Monday and Friday Transportation to Fort Dix is provided

A volunteer training class has been scheduled at Walson Hospital for those who feel they would like to help our hospitalized servicemen, phone the Red Cross at 924 2401 and make arrangements to attend the volunteer training class and then give your time and your energy to brighten the serviceman's hospital stay.

Study Center Needs Tutors

For the first time in a long time the Princeton Study Center finds it has students asking for help and is unable to supply the tutors. Tutors are needed for math and languages, for students from the sixth through 12th grades.

Tutoring is done one day a week, either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday afternoon or evenings Monday through Thursday at Community Park School.

These are not necessarily long range commitments. Some students need a little help to get through a contemporary academic trouble. For further details call Kate Litvak — 924 9375 or Marcia Van Dyke — 921 7597.

THE PIED PIPER OF PDS: Margaret W. Gilbert has lured and enchanted the youngsters at Princeton Day School into exceptional performances of her whimsical operettas, two of which "The Old Woman in the Shoe" and "Hike" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. this Friday in the school auditorium. Admission is free. Mrs. Gilbert has written book, words and music for 15 musical plays — all for younger actors and actresses. (Paul Lyman Photo)

TWO OPERETTAS READY

For Young Audiences. Two new operettas by Margaret W. Gilbert, written expressly for children, will be presented at the Princeton Day School at 7:30 p.m. this Friday. Admission is free.

The second grade will give "The Old Woman in the Shoe" and fourth graders will perform "Hike." Mrs. Gilbert, who directs the lower school music program, has written, as far, 15 operettas for children, all melodic, puckish little tales that delight the youth and parents alike.

She likes some of her operettas better than others. A particular favorite is "A Letter to God," adapted from an original story by a South American writer. In it, a poor farmer writes God asking for 100 pesos to get the family through a tough winter. Postal employees intercept the letter, collect 60 pesos and write back to him — only to have the farmer complain, in song, that it isn't enough and would God please send more; but not to use the mail because the clerks are taking the money.

Children's music became Mrs. Gilbert's special work when she was a young teacher in Spartanburg, S. C. She had studied music and music education at Mary Baldwin College, writing many shows there.

Most of her plays are based on original stories or ideas by other writers. Next year, when she is on a sabbatical leave with her husband, the Rev. Richard R. Gilbert, she hopes to have an opportunity to meet Welsh writer Charles Morris. "He's been so nice about letting me use four of his stories," she says.

One of these, titled "King March" in Mrs. Gilbert's musical version, is the Welsh tale of King Midas. It is now being used in special programs for disturbed children by a group of educators in the southwest.

Three of Mrs. Gilbert's operettas have been published, along with a book of original seasonal songs and a collection of Christmas music composed by Mrs. Gilbert for the annual Christmas pageant at Princeton Day School.

ALBERS WORKS ON VIEW At Art Museum. There is a dimension in American Painting that would not exist without the work of Joseph Albers. The effect of one color upon another and its influence upon form has been his life work. The implications of this work are present in almost all the new art forms today.

His major contribution and the most well known, is Homage to the Square. This consists of a series of paintings in which squares are placed within each other. The squares are similar or identical in structure but vary in color.

It is through this controlled change of color that Albers demonstrates the way two colors will create the impression of a third color, the illusion of movement and the creation of line that exists as a result of the effects of the interaction of two colors.

The scope of the show at the Princeton Art Museum helps us to understand this artist by tracing his development from his early works through the present day. In the early years his work reflected the major trends of that time.

His lithographs reflect the beginnings of cubism and the lessons learned from post impressionists such as Cezanne. His woodcuts and linecuts are more like those of the German Expressionists.

Albers work is followed in to the Thirties were he became more architectural in his approach. His concern with specific forms and their relation to one another becomes more apparent and gradually we are taken through his development and into his major work, the square.

The possibilities of color and their effect upon rectangular forms have not been exhausted by this prolific artist and teacher. His current work is more squares and more color in his continuing search for complete understanding of the interaction of color.

At Gallery 100. The local landscape has a new look at Gallery 100. Ken McIndoe presents a bright and vigorous view of the Delaware Valley. A heavy use of paint and a strong hand with color are reminiscent of the later work of Vincent Van Gogh. A deeply hued palette is applied with much movement so that the painterly technique of this artist dominates his work.

Mr. McIndoe, an Australian, now lives on Featherbed Lane, Hopewell, where his surroundings supply constant inspiration. He teaches in New York and has taught and studied in his homeland.

The graphics of Joseph Demarais are also on display. Mr. Demarais maintains his ability to amuse at the same time that he presents a visually satisfactory experience for the viewer.

Large forms are excitingly contrasted with the more delicate in still life, witty humanoids and other creatures of the artist's fancy. A tonal palette of black and brown is deftly employed.

At The Eye For Art. "Conadrums Bible" is another look at the scriptures at The Eye for Art. And what a look! The texts are bilingual but the prints are universal. Human love, in various forms; war, thunder and lightning are delicately etched and humorously depicted. Brigitte Caudrain has employed her sense of humor as well as her talent in the tiny illustrations to the text. It is this talent that keeps the portfolio inside the world of art and outside of pornography.

At Princeton Gallery of Fine Art: Virginia Berresford has given the Irish landscape an extra dimension in her current show at the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art.

In this series of misty views, stories of lakes, mountains and a lonely castle on a cliff are told in color that is not quite real. An aura of fantasy is created by deep purples, rich blues and strong greens combined with pale tones. Beneath the romantic style of these paintings is a strong structure in which natural forms are effectively used.

Virginia Berresford has been a recognized painter since the early part of this century. Her work has been exhibited in major galleries and museums throughout this country and Europe. It is part of the permanent collection of the Whitney Museum in New York and the Detroit Art Museum.

MOUNT SAINT PATRICK: by Virginia Berresford, an Irish landscape on view at Princeton Gallery of Fine Art through February.

Talk on Albers Set

Gallery talks of the Josef Albers exhibitions at the Art Museum will be conducted by graduate students who helped prepare the show.

One is scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday by Hugh Davies, and another at 3 p.m., Sunday, by Peter Morrin.

PHOTOGRAPHS ON VIEW By Naomi Savage. Eleven photographs by Princeton photographer, Naomi Savage, have been selected for the Tennis in Art exhibit, now in progress at the Provident National Bank of Philadelphia.

The exhibit is planned in conjunction with the Philadelphia International Indoor Tennis Championships February 9-14.

Meanwhile, to stimulate interest in the forthcoming Championships, the Tennis in Art exhibit opened this week. It will be a month long pretournament event, open to the public and held at the Provident National Bank's Executive headquarters, Broad and Chestnut Streets. The benefits from the Spectrum tennis event are given to junior development programs in the Middle States area, including Mercer County youth programs.

One of Mrs. Savage's photographs has also been chasen for the sover of the Exhibit Program. She has loaned to the Philadelphia show examples of a wide range of mediums incuding photo-engravings, photo-collages, and solarized prints all with a tennis motif. Also included in this exhibition is a tenhis drawing done by Mrs. Savage's daughter, Lourie Savage, an 8th grader at the Princeton Day School.

Mrs. Savage is the wife of the architect and artist, David Savage, ad niece of Man Ray, with whom she studied. Her work is included in the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art.

News Of Clubs and Organizations

Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad: 8 p.m., Monday, at the squad home.

Sierra Club: 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, January 27, in Peyton Hall on the Princeton University Campus. Carfield Demarco will speak on "Proposed legislation to Preserve the New Jersey Pine Barrens: A New Method of Environmental Protection." Morton Cooper, president of FOCUS, an organization formed to preserve the Pine Barrens, and Dr. Jack McCormick, who conducted an extensive study of the area for the federal government, will also speak. The public is invited.

Friday Club: 12:30, this week, in the YWCA lounge. Luncheon will be provided by the committee, members or guests need not bring their own. Don Evans, Executive Director of the Youth Center, will discuss experiences in black cultural arts at the Center. Call the Y by 11 a.m. the day of the meeting for a ride.

Women's College Club of Princeton has made information and application forms available in the guidance offices of the three secondary schools in Princeton for its annual scholarship aid to qualified girls. Grants are made on the basis of high scholastic standing, leadership, activities, promise of service and financial need to girls accepted for their freshman year by an accredited four-year college. Forms should be mailed by March 18.

Funds come from members' dues and a dessert-card party and white elephant sale to be held this year on March 29. The club also maintains an interest-free loan fund to enable girls in the upper classes to continue in college beyond the freshman year.

Serving on the scholarship committee are Miss Jean Godolphin, chairman, Mrs. James A. Amick, Mrs. W. Donald Hogg and Miss Dorothy E. Wagner.

St. Paul's PTA: 7 p.m., Monday, at the school. Conferences with teachers in classrooms will be held until 8:15, followed by a meeting in the school auditorium and a presentation by first grade students. A book fair will be held in the library, and refreshments served in the cafeteria.

Hopewell Valley Democratic Club: 8 p.m., Thursday, at the Pennington Grange Hall. Alfred Vogel, a vice-president of Opinion Research Corp. and Democratic candidate for Pennington Borough Council last year, will speak on "Future Directions on the American Political Scene, Including Likely Implications of the 18-Year-Old Vote." Election of officers for 1971 will be held. The nominees are Barbara Ackerman, president; Joseph Chamberlain, vice-president for membership; Nancy Centra, vice-president for programs, John Gleeson, vice-president for mini-organizations; Joan De Nicola, treasurer; Ann Goliia, corresponding secretary; and Marie Hutnik, recording secretary.

Plans for the annual Installation Dinner and a tribute to Helen Stephan, one of the club's early presidents, to be held at Hopewell Valley Golf Club on February 11, will be discussed.

Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad has elected Duuglas Watson, a member of the Borough Police Force, as president. Dewitt Boice was re-elected captain. Others elected: David Cromwell, vice-president; Charles Ostroff, secretary; Albert Toto, treasurer; Rudy Lehnert, first lieutenant; John Bellow, second lieutenant; Marcus Case, head driver; Royal Archer, Sargeant-at-Arms; and Eugene Rigg, Anthony Zuccarello, Scott Blomley, Mr. Watson and Mr. Bellow, trustees.

Woman's Club of Princeton, 1:30 p.m. Thursday, at the Shrine Club.

"Opera in Miniature" will be presented by Mrs. Ennen R. Silvers, a member of Educational staff of the New Jersey State Museum. Mrs. Silver's unusual presentation of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" is in the form of a revolving stage with character dolls fashioned of chicken and turkey wishbones and dressed in authentic costumes. Her lecture-demonstration will also include a discussion of other operas.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Dana A. Hamel, chairman and Mrs. C. J. Schwoerer, decorations chairman. They will be assisted by Mesdames A. M. Byers, Jr., W. W. Bothwell, G. F. Bush, E. E. Deimund, H. R. F. Dawson, W. B. Foster, A. C. Gay, C. M. Gilt, E. A. Goldberg, W. E. Jones, Y. Levasseur, R. H. Lippincott, J. L. McKee, E. J. Meyerkort, W. W. Robinson, C. Sonnenschein, A. C. Warner, and D. C. Myckoff.

The club's Conservation and Garden Department will meet on Tuesday, at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Minot C. Morgan, 36 Mercer Street.

"Modern Concepts in Landscape Design," an illustrated lecture on contemporary trend in the home landscape, will be given by Mr. Russell M. Bettes, a member of the faculty of the Temple University School of Horticulture and Landscape Design.

Princeton Area Smith College Club: luncheon meeting 12:30, Tuesday, at the Present Day Club. There will be discussion of final plans for the club's annual auction, which is under the direction of Mrs. Thomas L. Mathews.

School Budget Protested.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a copy of a letter I have sent to the Princeton Regional School Board.

JAMES A. ARNOLD JR.
232 Edgerstoune Road

(Editor's Note: The writer is chief of tax research and statistics in the New Jersey State Treasurer's Department)

No one in Princeton is in a position to vote intelligently in the coming school budget election. The statement published by the Princeton Regional School Board of Education provides virtually nothing in the way of information useful to anyone attempting reasoned and responsible comment.

What the citizens are asked to do is to approve a budget involving more than $7 million in total expenditures and a substantial property tax increase on nothing better than the "good faith" of the Board of Education.

I for one am experiencing property taxes at a level to challenge my capacity to pay them. I strongly suspect that others in Princeton feel this pinch even more than I do.

It would be easy enough to assume the role of "irate taxpayer" and say some intemperate things about the summarized budget as presented. Such a reaction has never been my practice, and I do not intend that it shall become my practice now. I feel, however, that the Board of Education has some responsibility to make meaningful information available so that my reaction can be something more than just despair over the level of the tax which this budget implies.

What I have in mind is a challenge to the Board of Education — and to the citizens of Princeton — to develop some forthright school program budgeting. This will involve the establishment of priorities in full recognition of the fact that programs low on the priority list will not survive.

Although the word "priority" has appeared often in the school statements, there is every evidence that it means nothing more than an assumption that no school question should ever receive a negative answer. No one questions that teachers should be well paid nor that the educational needs of students should be met to the fullest extent possible. This does not mean that the schools cannot employ more teachers than necessary and it does not mean that facilities must be provided to satisfy every whim of every student.

Without the kind of information necessary to develop all of the possible searching questions, I would like to suggest a few:

- When any new course of fering — such as Driver Education, Automotive Mechanics or Advanced Latin — is contemplated, what attention is given to possible courses to be abandoned? Must all new things be "additions to" rather than "replacements of?"
- To what extent are courses offered in a manner to provide classes too small to be justifiable? Can the Princeton schools afford to teach a course for one or two or three students?
- To what extent does Princeton insist upon "going it alone" in programs which it could share with other districts? For example, various vocational subjects, programs for atypical pupils, etc.
- On this subject of "going it alone," what have the Princeton schools done to make maximum use of the facilities available to them at other Princeton institutions? For example, could some of the higher priced courses for small numbers of pupils be obtained at Princeton University — like advanced languages, sciences, etc.
- There is an implication that next year when West Windsor students leave the Princeton High School, it will be necessary to increase taxes to offset the loss in tuition. Who has been kidding whom? We have been told repeatedly that the sending districts do not pay their way. Does this mean that the same school budget must be maintained for a reduced number of students? Who among us would attempt to run our business or our personal affairs in this way?

From what I have seen and heard, I am convinced that the budget to be voted upon is not conservative and it is not a "hold the line" budget. I think my past record of sound citizenship and community participation is above suspicion. I do believe, however, that an attitude of good citizenship does not require blind acceptance of what seems to me an unreasonable budget and one as poorly explained as is the school budget to be voted upon in Princeton on February 2, 1971.

It is with serious soul searching that I am announcing to anyone who may be interested that I shall vote against the budget and I encourage others to do the same.

Religion Issue Discussed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

An unfortunate aspect of the "Religion in the Schools" debate has been the tendency of some Princetonians to use it for fomenting divisiveness between Christians and Jews.

This is not only wrong but absurd. The individuals who brought the problem to the attention of the Board of Education included people of all faiths. There were as many Christians among us as there were Jews.

Also, it was never our desire to remove religion from the school but, instead, to encourage its study in a secular and comparative sense so as to foster greater understanding in our children for pluralism in human affairs and for the ginormous diversity among people. We urged sensitivity to the needs of minorities not only for the minorities' sake.

It is even more vital to freedom that the majority's culture understand that its way is one of, but not the, American way. My Lai happened, I believe, not because the American soldiers involved were monsters; rather they had never been educated to the fact that people very different from themselves were indeed people.

While the School Board and professional staffs at the schools are grappling with this intriguing and difficult problem over the coming months, let us remember that "Being in the Schools" is an educational not a religious problem.

Ideas for Reading Railroad.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a copy of a letter I have sent to J.S. Warden, Assistant Vice President for Passenger Services, Reading Railroad.

RICHARD M. LANGWORTH
20 Hart Avenue
Hopewell

When I recently asked why the Reading Railroad doesn't extend its Philadelphia-Trenton-Hopewell-Newark commuter service straight through to New York City, you advised that diesel-powered trains are not allowed in Manhattan and that your electrification does not extend beyond West Trenton. Thank you for these facts, but what is the Reading doing to improve the situation?

I have several suggestions. No one could legitimately ask for them a year ago. But now we have the new federal "Rail pax" bill, providing for intercity passenger train operation by a corporation jointly funded by the railroads and Washington. We also have the Urban Mass Transit Act, providing funds and low-interest loans to railroads for improved commuter service.

Passengers are still not clear as to which category the Reading line falls (perhaps you can tell me), but the point is that any improvements Reading now makes no longer have to be paid solely by the company. But since the public is now footing a portion of the bill, they have a parallel right to be heard.

Reading's top priority should be its New York commuter service, which presently requires passengers to transfer to NYC-bound Penn Central trains at Newark. But Reading's early train (the "Wall Street") does not allow passengers to arrive in New York early enough to beat the horde who insist on clogging the streets and subways between 8:45 and 9:00 a.m.

The late train (the "Crusader") doesn't arrive in Newark until nearly ten. Both trains might, after a survey of passenger preferences, be rescheduled to arrive early enough to benefit those who must be in their New York offices around nine or ten.

If an earlier schedule caused inconvenience at the Philadelphia stops, a third, local train might continue to run at the usual hours between Reading Terminal and Jenkintown, but judging by the amount of people on the train when I board or leave it in Hopewell, this very early schedule is not benefitting very many and can hardly be making money.

Along with more convenient scheduling, commuter lines should be electrified between West Trenton and Newark, permitting gradual adoption of electrified trains, with the ultimate aim of offering through service to New York.

Most of us who now ride the Reading pay a premium (in total monthly fares) for its on-time performance, superior comfort, convenience and cleanliness, and the outstanding courtesy of its personnel, though quite a few of us could use Penn Central.

There would be, I think, little objection to any reasonable fare-rises higher than PC's $24.20 per month — set from Newark to New York, because of the large benefits in convenience. (The PATH service, which presently claims large numbers of Reading passengers in Newark, is overcrowded, extremely slow to mid-town, and could not compete).

Reading should also consider the possibilities for new and vigorous efforts in non-commuter passenger service between Philadelphia and Newark or central Pennsylvania. Diesel cars transferred from the New York lines could be used her to provide at least one morning and one evening trip between end points, at hours encouraging maximum usage, particularly on weekends.

Increasingly stringent traffic laws and inhuman penalties for older drivers, not to mention the hazards and frustration for any motorist on our overcrowded highways, provides new potential for efficient non-commuter rail service.

Backed by the new federal funds and competent market surveys, Reading should aggressively supply this happy alternative for the rapidly increasing number of people that live along its lines.

The New York-Washington Metroliners have demonstrated that efficient, convenient, well-advertised rail service is not only pleasurable for travelers but profitable for railroads. "If the railroads really went after passengers in a big way on medium-length, high volume runs," says a Greyhound Vice President, "they could crucify us."

I say let's get on with the crucifixion. The Reading Company which already provides the most comfortable, civilized rail service in New Jersey should be among the leaders in this effort.

OPEN HOUSE THURSDAY

At Adult School. All those who have not registered by mail are urged to attend the one day in-person registration and open house scheduled by the Adult School for 4 to 6 and 8 to 9:30 this Thursday in the high school cafeteria. Instructors will also be available to talk to anyone already enrolled about course materials or advance reading.

There is a two-hour seminar to be given on Plato by Mrs. Cary Peebles an editor of the Rutgers University Press. The aim of this is to bring the participants into direct contact with Plato's Socrates by using his own methods of examining the problems confronting Western civilization from his days to our own. The readings will consist of Apology and Crito, The Last Days of Socrates and The Republic of Plato.

A two-hour new skill course, Experimental Sculpture, will be given by one of the most talented teachers and artists on the Adult School's roster—Mrs. Margaret K. Johnson of the staff of the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The class will work with various light-weight materials such as turkey wire out of which large size works might be created without the attendant problems of weight.

There will he work in heavier more resistant media on a smaller scale and projects will include large and small examples that will be finished during the course's duration. Other manipulative materials will be cardboard, and some carving of resistant materials such as stone and wood as well as the construction of assemblages using assorted materials. Individual approach will be emphasized.

TRY YOUR HAND WITH TURKEY WIRE: Margaret K. Johnson will teach a course in Experimental Sculpture at the Adult School this winter, enabling students to work with various media, including turkey wire shown here.

Professor Robert J. Wickenheiser of Princeton University, will conduct a class in The Modern Short Story. He will consider the structures and styles that have developed in Western literature during this century. Readings will be in the works of Joyce, Hemingway D. H. Lawrence, Sherwood Anderson, Kafka, Faulkner, Steinbeck, Flannery O'Connor, Carson McCullers, Katherine Anne Porter and others.

There will be a new class in intermediate French which will be given for two hours on Tuesday nights and the instructor is Miss Ann Coco. This is not a continued class from the Fall term and those who have a working knowledge of the language and would like to start mid-term are encouraged to participate in this course.

The High School Equivalency Program with classes in English, Mathematics, Social Studies and Natural Sciences will be given again and students are urged to meet with George Petrillo before hand.

The instruction and counseling will prepare the students to take the General Educational Development tests and there are some scholarship monies available to qualified students in this area.

ANTIQUE BOTTLES TOPIC

Of Historical Society Meeting. The third lecture of the Histrical Society of Princeton's morning lecture series will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, at the Methodist Church Parish House.

The story of early American bottles and flasks and their relationship to our country's cultural, political and economic development will be discussed by Jack K. Rimalover. Mr. Rimalover, vice-president of Creative Playthings, has been a bottle collector since 1961, specializing in American Historical Flaskse, Inks, Patent medicines (prior to 1900). Mr. Rimalover is a lecturer, writer and consultant on old bottles.

The early history of glass making in the U.S. will be described and particuar attention wil be given to New Jersey's related historical events as reflected in commemorative flasks blown in the early 1800's.

Admission to the Morning Series is without charge. Guests of the Society are invited for coffee at Bainbridge House, the Society's headquarters on Nassau Street at 10, preceeding the lecture.

ANNUAL MEETING SET

By YWCA. The Annual Membership Meeting of the YWCA will be held on Thursday, January 28, at 8 p.m. in the assemblyroom of the First Presbyterian Church.

Coffee and dessert will be served prior to the business session and surprise entertainment will be featured on the program.

Mrs. Harold Sim, Jr., Board of Directors President, urges all YWCA members to attend the meeting, not only to hear the successful 1970 reports, but to take this opportunity to have a voice in the programs and activities scheduled for this year.

Membership voting on nominees for the positions of board members and the 1971 nominating committee is being conducted by mail during the two weeks preceding the meeting. Mrs. Ronald Enstrom, chairman of the committee has informed members that all ballots must be returned to the YWCA by January 28 before 6 p.m.

New Ph.D's Face Hard Times in Job Market

It's automatic that the unskilled worker is going to be among the hardest hit by the rising rate of unemployment, but for the man who has gone through four years of college and several more of graduate study to earn his Ph.D., the job market is just as bleak.

According to Princeton University's career placement officers, the outlook is not particularly bright for any graduate this year, but it should not be desperate for the 800 young men and women who will collect their undergraduate degrees here in June. For those 175 Ph.D. candidates finishing three or four years of graduate study it's a different story.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised if there are some new Ph.D.'s who won't be able to find a job in June," Newell Brown, Director of Career Services for the University, admitted. In years past each had several good offers from which to choose.

The number of companies interviewing post - graduate students at Princeton this fall tumbled from 74 a year ago to 38, and three quarters of those had no specific openings, according to Mr. Brown. "They just hoped things might open up."

Normally by now Ph.D. candidates would have received, overall, some 30 to 40 letters inviting them to on-site interviews; so far this year one has come.

"The Ph.D. situation is really desperate," confirms Jerome P. Webster, Jr., Assistant Director for Career Services and the man who handles the scheduling for Brown's office.

Willing to Work for Less. He said that many Ph.D.'s have indicated they would be willing to work for salaries paid bachelor degree holders. But the companies still don't want them because they figure as soon as a better offer comes along, off they'll go."

Those whose training is theoretically-oriented (and that is generally the emphasis at Princeton, according to the Career Services spokesmen) are even harder hit. "Companies want people now whose training is practical," suggests Mr. Webster.

The Princeton aides said that the market for college teachers apparently also was tight, except at the mushrooming junior college level. "But our people don't seem to want that; there is too much teaching, and at a basic level, not enough research opportunity." (Most students seeking college teaching and/or research careers normally do not job hunt through Brown's office, however.)

Last year a total of 004 interviews were conducted here with graduate students; this fall the number fell to 541.

Undergraduate Outlook. No interviewing is done at Princeton in the fall for undergraduate students; companies and government agencies traditionally make their rounds in February and March and it won't be until then that a firm picture of the baccalaureate students' post graduate situation begins to emerge.

"But generally the picture is also not good," suggests Mr. Webster. "And it is not about to change very soon," adds Mr. Brown.

"Undoubtedly the lineup is the thinnest in the seven years I have been here," Mr. Brown observed today. He said 125 firms or agencies had signed up to date to interview in the spring, compared with 183 at this time a year ago, and 250 several years ago. The attrition rate by the scheduled interview time is about 30 per cent, and Mr. Brown suspects that this spring at least a number of those companies interviewing will, as in the fall, not have specific openings available.

"If we have a B.A. or a B.S.E. student who can't find a job of some kind, though I'd be surprised," notes Mr. Brown. Hardest hit will be the student in engineering or the sciences, especially those in aerospace and electrical engineering.

Mr. Brown suggested that more students might be willing to "kick around" for a year or so after graduation before settling into a career. He also said there was a growing feeling, especially among those doing undergraduate work in the sciences or engineering, that perhaps they should not go on to graduate work.

Starting Salaries. The starting pay for Princeton graduates last June averaged out at $9,420 for those with a BA degree and $10,800 for those with a B.S. in engineering. Graduate students with a Ph.D. in the sciences commanded $15,700; those with their doctorate in engineering averaged $16,560.

Princeton officials said they see little increase in this figure this year and feel the seemingly ever-rising remunerative package has reached at least a temporary plateau.

"The picture here isn't much different than it is at every other school," adds Mr. Brown.

But it's not as ridiculous as it may sound. One recent Princeton Ph.D. is already at work — milking cows for a Jersey dairy. Mr. Brown seems to think he may be better off than the man with two post doctoral degrees who has sent his wife and kids home with her folks while he continues job searching without success.

LEARN TO TWIRL

YWCA Offers Classes. Two new programs in baton twirling will be offered by the YWCA. One class will offer beginners the opportunity to learn the techniques of twirling and the application of fundamentals in fun routines and a class for the advanced twirler will be keyed to a series of routines incorporating more skills.

Both classes will meet together on beginning Monday, at 4:30 p.m. and on the following Monday afternoons in separate groups at 4:30 and 5:15 p.m.

Christine Irby, a Rider College junior and a member of the Atlanta All Star Majorettes will instruct both classes. Miss Irby has taught at twirling majorettes as well as drill teams in George for several years.

Registration is open to the public, and may be made by calling the YWCA office. The fee for YWCA members will be $5 for six sessions.

DAVIDSON HERE

Against Tigers Saturday. Virtually, if not mathematically eliminated from the Ivy League race, the Princeton basketball team can salvage some measure of success from a disappointing season, if it can upset a strong Davidson quintet Saturday in Jadwin Gym.

This will be the sixth meeting between the two teams, but the first ever on the Tigers' homecourt. Davidson holds a 3-2 edge in the series, and is currently 7-5 on the season.

Monday Princeton will travel to State College, Pa. to meet an up and down Penn State team. Last year in Jadwin, the Tigers won in a walk, 77-38.

TIGER SKATERS HOME

Seek Second Win. Riding atop a one-game win streak, Princeton's hockey team will be seeking its second victory of the season against Providence Saturday in Baker Rink. Action will begin at 2 p.m.

If the Tigers have managed to retain any momentum gained in the overtime triumph over Colgate, through the break for exams, they could have a strong chance of knocking off Providence. Not one of the outstanding teams in the ECAC Division I, Providence had a record of 6-5, prior to a Monday game against Northeastern.

Next Wednesday, at 8 p.m. the St. Nicks Hockey Club will come to Baker Rink for its annual exhibition game against Princeton.

PHS MATMEN SPLIT

Franklin, Cedar Ridge Next. Losing the last three bouts by one-point margins, the Princeton High School wrestling team Saturday dropped a 24-14 decision to Lawrenceville School to bring its record to 4-2. Earlier, the Little Tigers had scored their biggest win ever by blanking winless Trenton High School, 52-0.

Coach Tom Murray's grapplers will be at Franklin Friday afternoon for a 3:45 match, and then will entertain Cedar Ridge here Wednesday evening at 8. A jayvee match will precede the varsity meet.

This Wednesday afternoon at 3:30, PHS was scheduled to play host to the Hun School.

FRESHMAN MATMAN: Not many athletes can break into the varsity line-up as a freshman. An exception at PHS is Phil Ebersole who wrestles for the Little Tigers in the 106-pound class.

A key match in the Lawrenceville meet was Wes McClain's bout in the 157-pound class. PHS needed a win to stay in the match and McClain responded with a decision over the same wrestler who last year had decisioned Princeton's fine Maury Peabody, 9-5.

McClain's win brought PHS within one, 15-14, and its three heavy guns — Hodges, Parker and Rossi were coming up. "I thought we had it then," said Murray.

But Hodges lost by one point the difference being a penalty point the refree levied against Hodges for taking time to try to fix his helmet at the end of the match. "He called him for stalling but he never gave him a warning," Murray commented.

After Lawrence Parker lost in the 178-pound level, it became evident it just wasn't Princeton's day when Lou John Rossi was decisioned by one point in the heavyweight match. "He had his man on his back when time ran out," Murray said.

Andy Foltiny got PHS off to a running start when he pinned his man in the 95-pound division. After Phil Ebersole lost a decision, co-captain Dave MacDonald wrestled to a 14-0 win in the 115-pound match.

But Tommy Evans, Chris Cassard, Howie Heitner and Joe Moffo all lost decisions. Cassard lost on riding time and Moffo, wrestling for the absent Peter Hague in the 141-pound class, had to give away a few pounds.

Larry Ritchey, 148-pounder, stopped the Larries' string and McClain followed with his win. "We didn't wrestle badly at all; it was just one of those things," said Murray.

Four Pins. PHS combined four pins, four decisions and four Trenton forfeits to crush the visiting Tornadoes, who are still struggling to get their wrestling program under way.

Foltiny, Ebersole, Evans and Hodges got pins for the Little Tigers.

HUN TRIPED UP

By PDS Five in Overtime. There will be no attempt to muscle Hun out of the Penn-Jersey League in basketball this season.

The Red and Black proved it was vincible last week when it let area rival Princeton Day School overcome a 46-37 deficit with 3:30 to play and force the game into overtime. PDS, then attoned for years of frustration in sports against Hun when it held the favored Johnny Hun scoreless, while hitting on four foul shots. The final was PDS 51, Hun 47.

Coach Dave Leete's squad will have seven days to pull itself together before playing four games in nine days. It will start against Lawrenceville Wednesday at Lavino Fieldhouse for a 2:30 contest.

League games with Pennington and George School will follow.

Against PDS, Hun's Kirk Whitehead led all scorers with 18 points. Co-captain Lee Van Horn had 11. Mark Ellsworth with 16 paced PDS.

The loss was Hun's fourth in seven starts. For PDS it was a big win: its first of the season in five games and the first ever over Hun in roundball.

PHS Quintet: Anatomy of a Team Under Stress

If winning is the only thing, as Vince Lombardi once said, then the Princeton High School basketball team is a big loser.

Following their 74 to 23 loss at Ewing Saturday, the Little Tigers have won only one of 11 this season. For those who ask only of a team 'How many games have you won and lost?', PHS is clearly headed for a dismal season and not worth the price of admission.

However, a lot of followers of the Blue and White are asking, "What's wrong with Princeton High?", "Why is it losing so much?"

"When things go bad you have to have all the faith in the world; when you're losing everyone suddenly becomes an expert," observed PHS coach Larry Ivan recently. "I know how the coach of the Cavaliers feels now," he quipped.

Ivan, who was supposed to lead the floundering Little Tigers out of the wilderness of playing .500 ball—hasn't. Instead, the team has sunk even lower, winning 27 percent of its games under his reign. The solid statistics are in the three and one-half years Ivan has been at the helm, PHS has won 17 (11 of these last year) and lost 62.

One has to go back to 1962-63 for the last good season. Under Tony Borzok, PHS that year won 14 and lost 5, including a 49-47 setback to South River in the NJSIAA tournament.

Tony's only other winning season after that was in 1965-66 when he won 13, lost 10 and also qualified for the state tourney, defeating Asbury Park before losing to Neptune in the second round. In the five years before Ivan's take over, Borzok split right down the middle, winning 53 and losing 53.

Great Expectations. That wasn't good enough for school officials. Borzok was elbowed out to make room for Ivan who had had fabulous success with an intramural basketball program, winning 60 some games without a defeat. There was great expectation among the players and parents; here was someone who would put PHS on the basketball map.

Certainly, Ivan had the qualifications. He played his college ball at Kansas and later professional with the Trenton Colonials. No on brought more dedication or enthusiasm to the job.

He keeps elaborate statistics on every player—the number of rebounds, bad passes, fouls. . . . "I want to know the mistakes as well—how else can you coach?" he asks. There is a detailed play book he has prepared for every player. Under a long list of general rules he includes such advice as "Don't keep your parents waiting . . . remember they also have other nine-to-five commitments. "Go straight home after practice."

He also tells them when to study on game days. One can hear a pin drop at his practice sessions. He has firm control over every detail of every phase. Practice sessions start at 5:30 so Ivan doesn't get home until 8:30. "No one works harder than Larry does," commented one coach. He knows the game inside and out.

SKULL SESSION WITH IVAN: PHS basketball coach Larry Ivan, who has had trouble winning this year, discusses some of the game's fundamentals with the freshman team, taking over for Bill Cushmon who was ill. Varsity practice came right afterwards at 5:30 so Ivan didn't get home for supper until around 8:30. Story on Little Tiger quintet and their trials this page.

And yet all this hasn't translated into wins. There have been rumblings. One is that Ivan is overly optimistic; to which he readily pleads guilty. "If you approach it as a loser, you're going to be a loser," he retorts. "You can find fault with anything. There's too much negativism in the world."

More damaging is the belief by some that he is trying to go with a complicated style of play that hasn't worked so far and shows no sign of coming together, and that it hampers natural shooters who grew up learning to run and shoot.

Style Explained. Simply put, PHS has five offensive set plays for a man-to-man defense and five for a zone. The flow is continuous, one into another. It stresses ball control, passing instead of dribbling and constant movement. "If you play on this club you need lots of stamina," Ivan has remarked.

On defense, there are nine-set defenses "depending on what they throw at us." Complicated . . . and largely unappreciated, according to Ivan.

The Case for the Defense: Ivan denies that his style of play is the cause of his team's poor showing or that parents had been after him. "What people fail to realize," he said, "is that with the exception of Trenton and Steinert we've been in every game right up to the final few minutes.

"I'll admit we're making mistakes offensively," he continued. "We still don't have unity. It takes time." In 11 games so far, PHS has held the opposition to 55 points a game and in many it represented the team's lowest output.

But, PHS, on the other hand, has failed to score 50 points in a single game, averaging 37 per contest. What little there has been has been unbalanced. "If you're just looking for points, we could get 60 to 80 a game but we wouldn't get a win," Ivan stated. "We ran the first year and had 100 and 98 points scored against us. To run you need speed, quickness and the boards. If we ran against a team this year we'd be blown out of the court.

"We don't have the physical ability to stay with any ball club. We're small. We have to control the game to get our points."

Here's Your Chance. As if anticipating the still Doubtful Thomas' in the community, Ivan decided to let his team run against Ewing Saturday. "People have been saying, 'You've got great talent, great players, let 'em run'," he said.

PHS scored four points in the entire half. "They had a lot of their shots blocked but the kids figured if they kept throwing the ball up some of them would have to drop. But they didn't," Ivan reported.

"Now there isn't anybody on this club that isn't convinced that the greatest weapon we have is to control the game. I just wish more people had been there to see it," Ivan added.

Different Type Community: With the possible exception of football, the basketball team is a reflection of what is an unmistakable trend in major sports at PHS: They're going down hill. The baseball team, for example, didn't win a single game last spring; the track squad won one of 12 dual meets.

Sports In Princeton

"You have to work with what you have," said Ivan. We offer more sports (13) than any other high school, so it cuts down on the number of available players. There's less interest and its going down every year. Today, they're more interested in cars, girls and pizza parlors.

"We're not like Trenton when they play basketball all year long and they take the ball to bed with them. There's no comparison. We'll always be behind a year.

"Give me five junior high schools, a 1700 male student body and if I couldn't win, I'd give up in four weeks," declared Ivan. "We're never going to blow anybody out of the gym."

Suffer by Comparison. Living in the same town whose university has produced a Bradley and a Petrie hasn't helped either. "People have to learn what our boys are doing on defense. They don't even see it. They don't know what good defense is. They don't even know what to look for," complained Ivan.

"They're too oriented to Princeton University. They're used to seeing Princeton run up the score and ask why can't we do that. Well, even the university is having a rough time. I talked to Pete Carril the other night and he said people have to be patient.

"All we ask is to come out and support us, and try to appreciate the defense we're playing. We need support from students in all sports.

"Sure we like to win," Ivan went on — "and it flows with statistics, arguments, examples, comparisons and little bits of philosophy such as 'There are more losers in the world than winners' — but we also like to teach. Look at the ones who have graduated from here. They are playing college ball now.

"This is the greatest challenge we've had. I've never been a loser as a coach until now. There's been a lot of sleepless nights but it's been worth it. These kids are the greatest," he concluded, "They deserve more support."

Due to the increasing costs of newspaper publishing, TOWN TOPICS will no longer be available free of charge at the Penn-Central Railroad Station at Princeton Junction. Beginning with the January 28 issue, copies will be 10c apiece, the regular newsstand price already in effect at all other locations.

PHS FIVE RUNS

But Finds No Daylight. Sometimes to prove a point you do something you know you shouldn't.

Larry Ivan did that Saturday night when he let his team run in the second half again Ewing. "We put it to the test," said Ivan, who has been the victim of some second guessing for his deliberate, control type of play. "I let them run and they got killed."

Start All Over. After Ewing's lopsided, 74-23 win — Princeton's tenth loss in eleven games, Ivan reported he told his players, "Monday, we're going to start all over again—just as if it were November 15."

He still has 12 games, half a season, to prove that his way in the right way. He'll also get a boost from the schedule. After eight consecutive games on the road, PHS will be home for four straight, starting with Hamilton Friday night at 8.

Madison Township will be here Tuesday evening, also with an 8 p.m. tapoff.

Considering that the Little Tigers were playing the top-ranked team in Mercer County, they didn't do badly in the first half. After falling behind, 8-0, after the first 27 seconds of play, PHS battled back to a 36-19 half-time deficit.

Then came the running experiment — and disaster. PHS scored four points in the entire half, a jumper by Dave Fry with seconds to go in the third period and two free throws by Bill Evers in the final eight minutes.

Evers finished with seven points. Fry and Leon Robinson both had four. Little Tiger scored more than two baskets.

After the game, Ivan reported his players at first didn't say a word. Later they said, "Mr. Ivan, you're 100 percent right."

"We're going to continue to work hard; we're not going to quit," Ivan said. "They know now there's no other way; we have to use the strengths we have. This is our weapon."

PDS FIVE WINS FIRST

At MacArthur Friday. A last-minute rally that worked on a Wednesday won't necessarily be successful three days later, the Princeton Day basketball team found out last week.

The Panthers turned the trick last Wednesday against the Hun School, making up a nine-point deficit with less than four minutes to play to deadlock the contest at the end of regulation time, and then pulling out a 51-47 victory in overtime.

Against Bryn Athyn on Saturday, however, the Blue and Whitefall two points short as they sought to close an eight-point gap with four minutes left. When Mark Ellsworth's shot rolled off the rim with four seconds left, Bryn Athyn had a 45-43 triumph.

The victory, the first ever over Hun, was the Panthers' first of the season after four losses. Led by Ellsworth and Tony Dale, PDS fought back from a 46-37 deficit, and earned a 47-47 deadlock as the clock ran out. Holding Hun scoreless in the overtime, the winners got four foul shots, the first by Carl Jacobelli, two by Steve Rash and a final one from Ellsworth to provide the margin of victory.

Ellsworth was high with 16 points. Carl Rosenburg had 10.

Against Bryn Athyn, Dave Seckle, Tony Dale and Ellsworth brought PDS back from a 43-35 margin, but two free throws by Bryn Athyn's Fred John's with 31 seconds left proved to be the difference. Scheduled on Wednesday to go against George School, the best in the Penn-Jersey league, the Panthers will travel to MacArthur Military Academy on Friday.

CRANFORD AT PDS

For Return Match. The Princeton Day hockey team will have another of those record-fattening contests Friday at 4:30, when it meets the Cranford Hockey Club in the PDS rink. Earlier this month PDS blanked Cranford 5-0.

On Wednesday, PDS was set for a much stiffer test in a scheduled game against the Hill School away.

Replacing Princeton High on the schedule with the South Orange Canadians didn't change the outcome of the game to any great extent, as the Panthers skated to an easy 8-0 triumph last Friday. They are now 2-4 on the season.

It was all over after the first period, when PDS built up a 4-0 lead; the only drama revolving around whether goalie Tom O'Connor would be able to turn in another shutout. He wasn't particularly pressed in turning away 18 shots. PDS meanwhile peppered the luckless South Orange goaltender with 49 shots, many at point-blank range. The visitors were rarely without one or two men in the penalty box in the third period, leaving the goalie at the mercy of the PDS offense.

Sam Rodgers netted a pair of tallies to lead the attack. Other scorers included Buzz Woodworth, Art Mittnacht, John Mattnacht, Rob Holt, John Moore and John Gordon.

PHS AT BRICK TWP.

For Return Hockey Game. The Princeton High School hockey team, which lost to Brick Township, 5-1, in December, will try to square matters when it travels to the shore school for a Saturday contest. The game will be played in the morning starting at 11:30.

Coach Eugene Doherty's sextet, fresh off its first win of the season against the Hun School, was scheduled to play Beacon Hill Wednesday. The opening face-off is set for 5 p.m. in Summit.

CARDS HELD TO 27

But PHS Scores Only 17. Convinced that his team can't run with anyone, PHS coach Larry Ivan had his Little Tigers revert to control ball Tuesday night against Lawrence High School. It didn't work as the home town Cardinals prevailed, 27-17.

For the second consecutive game, PHS scored just four points intwo periods of play. Unless Ivan receives more scoring from someone else either than Billy Evera, the season—currently one win in 12—is going to get longer and longer.

Evers accounted for more than half of the losers' output, scoring a game high 10 points. Leon Robinson, Tim Nuding and Kent Bain all added single baskets.

As it was, Princeton's slowdown almost succeeded. Through three periods, the Little Tigers held Lawrence, second in the Delaware Valley League, to 15 points while scoring 10 of its own. But in the final period, when the Little Tigers tried to steal the game by opening up, they were outscored, 12-7.

BOOK FAIR NEXT WEEK

At St. Paul's. New books at popular prices will be displayed at the St. Paul's School book fair, scheduled to open this Monday. Hours are 9 to 2 and 7 to 10 on Monday and 9 to 2 on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. William Kelly, chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. John O'Donnell and Mrs. Raymond Plunkett. They have been working with Educational Reading Service, a professional book fair company, to insure a wide selection of books for all reading interests. Proceeds will benefit current PTA projects.

STORYHOUR SERIES SET

At Public Library. Children ages 3½-5 are invited to register for the Winter Storyhour Series at the Princeton Public Library. Mrs. Kirk and Mrs. Lamkin will present the series Wednesday mornings at 10 a.m. from February 3 to March 17.

The half-hour programs will feature old and new story favorites presented in a lively group situation. Only children who have been registered may attend, and registration is limited.

SKATING, TENNIS FEES

On Recreation Agenda. Two new items have appeared on the agenda of the Princeton Recreation Board, which was scheduled to meet this Wednesday evening.

In the wake of three near tragedies on Carnegie Lake last week, the board will wrestle with the two-pronged problem of how to mark off safe skating areas and, once defined, how to enforce them. The board will also discuss proposed changes in fees (upward) for the tennis courts at Community Park. Those affected would be season ticket holders and non-resident users.

R. Donald Barr, executive director of the Recreation Department, acknowledged that the use of ropes or colored dyes have been considered to mark off safe areas. However, he continued, ropes would be dangerous at night and as far as dyes or florescent paint, "we don't even know if they'll work yet," he said.

Ring buoys attached to posts at strategic places around the lake have not been effective because they are stolen. Compounding the problem is the length of the shoreline — the lake is three miles long which gives skaters ample opportunity to skate in unsafe areas — and the fact the lake is private property owned by Princeton University.

The Recreation Department has agreed to oversee the ice skating safety program at the lake because no one else wanted to be stuck with it. There is no ordinance compelling anyone to patrol the lake or test it for safe skating.

"If we didn't do it, no one else would so we felt we had a moral responsibility," Mr. Barr said. "We realize the danger — we were lucky last week — and we have spent a lot of time trying to come up with better solutions."

REED DONATES LAND

To W. Windsor School Board. The West Windsor-Plainsboro Board of Education, at a special meeting last evening, announced that the larger of the two land parcels which were being considered for purchase to expand the site at the Dutch Neck School, has been donated by its owner, Stuart Reed.

Mr. Reed operates a sod farm on the land adjacent to the Dutch Neck site. The school district has been discussing possible acquisition of a portion of Mr. Reed's farm for the past six months.

Following agreement of most of the details for acquisition of the land, the board passed a resolution which would have permitted them to seek voter approval for a land purchase of approximately seven acres. Last week, Mr. Reed indicated a desire to donate, rather than sell, his portion of approximately six acres of the land to the school district.

The remaining parcel of land, approximately three-fourths of an acre, is owned by Princeton Research Land Inc. At the meeting, the board modified its original resolution and will ask for voter approval to purchase this parcel of land at a cost not to exceed $4,000.00 including incidental expenses.

NEW SHOPS AND OLD

Moves on "The Street." The Flower Basket, a Nassau Street flower shop for almost 30 years, will move up the street this spring from 136 Nassau where it's been for 20 years, into the premises at 110 Nassau. That's where the Dolly Madison sign hung for a brief time.

Florence Hillyer, founder and owner of the Basket, said this week that her son, J. Robert Hillyer the architect, will design a completely new storefront and interior for the 110 address. The new location will give her about twice as much space as she has now.

The owner of 136 Nassau, Children's Shop at Number 131, may break through the wall and expand his existing enterprise when the Basket moves out, but he said this week that plans are still being made.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the street east of Harrison a new flower shop is scheduled to move into 358 Nassau, the main show-room of Nassau Interiors when that store occupied the building. The owner is Miss Judy Perrine.

At the rear of those premises, at the end of the courtyard made by the various buildings in the complex, will be "Nordicraft," a shop of Scandinavian crafts to be operated by a group of Princeton women of Scandinavian origin, and an antique shop from the New Hope area.

Directly on Nassau, at 362, will be the new shop for Princeton Hairstyling for Men

BUXTON'S LOOKS AHEAD

To Better Times. In a sagging economy, one of the first luxuries to go is the money spent eating out. Buxton's Country Shops found this out in 1970 in the midst of an ambitious expansion program, and is just beginning to recover from the effects.

Its planned expansion program had to be halted in midstream, when sufficient funds to carry out scheduled new store openings were not available. Six less profitable shops were closed, the opening of others was deferred, and the Tin Coachman restaurant, on Route 518 Spur in Hopewell, was leased to Merril Zinder and his associates, after losing $77,000 through September 30.

The firm's latest statement of operation shows a loss of $538,580 for the first nine months of 1970 on operating revenues of more than $3 million. The large loss is reflected in the price of Buxton's common stock traded on the Over-the-Counter market. Selling for more than $10 a share in January 1970, it fell below $1 late in the year.

But many restaurants failed to make it through this period. Dolly Madison, among others, died a quiet death. Buxton's did pull through, however, and its president, Robert L. Buxton, sees brighter days ahead.

According to Mr. Buxton distinct progress has been made over recent months in cutting and controlling costs, and bringing them into line with the requirements of a less expansionary system. Many of the extraordinary costs associated with the opening and build-up of new shops and the closing down of others have had an adverse effect on earnings.

The company has gained additional funds to meet current cash needs and help it over the lower volume months by issuing common stock. Approximately 530,000 in new long-term funds have recently been invested in the company. Tamarack Associates, a private investment partnership, now owns more than 50% of the company's private stock.

The banks are also granting the company a moratorium on debt repayment for six months with two additional six-month periods possible after that. This moratorium is intended to provide Buxton's with breathing room to improve its cash flow and profits.

On its own, the company has launched a program to boost sales. The push for increased sales through the shops system will be aided by a coordinated merchandising campaign and a revised menu. Take-out sales will be accented with additional products under the Buxton label for home consumption being introduced. Finally direct sales of products prepared and processed by Buxton's own Commissary in Jamesburg to institutional customers are being promoted.

SECOND CONCERT SET

In Chamber Music Series. A recital by Geoffrey Michaels, violinist, with Diedre Irons, pianist, will be the second concert in the Music Department's Chamber Music series this season. The concert will be held on Wednesday, January 27 at 8:30 p.m. in 10 McCosh Hall. Tickets are $3 (students $2), available at the Concert Office, Woolworth Center, 924 0453, or at the door.

Geoffrey Michaels was born in Western Australia in 1944, and began playing the violin when he was five. At the age of 14, he won the Australian Broadcasting Commission's national competition for instrumentalists, and subsequently appeared throughout the country as recitalist and soloist with the major orchestras, as well as broadcasting extensively.

Mr. Michaels became a member of the Curtis String Quartet and teacher at the New School of Music in Philadelphia in 1964, and remained in this position until the summer of 1969, when he resigned to devote himself to study and performance.

Diedre Irons, Canadian pianist, is presently a member of the Curtis Institute faculty. She is a graduate of the Institute, having studied with Horszowski and Serkin. Miss Irons has concertized extensive

FAST PACE IS NORMAL For Young Irishmaa Here

Michael T. Lennon, a native of County Roscommon, Ireland, has spent just eight years in this country, but he has crammed more into them than many Americans would have attempted.

During his time here Mr. Lennon has attended Rider College evening classes year round for six years, earning a bachelor of science degree, which he received just last Sunday. During the day he held down a fulltime position at First National Bank, and in 1964 he had to interrupt both pursuits to serve two years in the Army.

Mr. Lennon's transition from the more leisurely pace of life in Ireland to the "hectic" rate here started almost as soon as he got off the boat in the summer of 1962.

He recalls that "a bit of adventurism," and a strong determination for a college education here, led him to leave his family farm after finishing

Once in America, he took up the pace of life here by winning a position at the First National Bank of Princeton shortly after he was welcomed to the U.S.A. by his grand aunt, Mrs. Della McCausland of Princeton-Kingston Road.

Mr. Lennon's American-like determination and hard work impressed First National officials who recently promoted him to assistant cashier. He also is personnel manager for First National.

Before that first summer was over, Mr Lennon had registered at Rider College. First National helped with some of the tuition bills.

There were some early troubles in making up credits in biology and chemistry which are not taught in Irish secondary schools, but Mr. Lennon's "Irish" was aroused by the challenge. He made it in spite of "feeling lost" in the science courses at first.

Mr. Lennon graduated from Rider with a 2.98 average which he held under 10- and 11-credit semester pressures. He was also named Man of the Month in December by Rider's evening division administrators.

Graduation will mark the end of the hectic pursuit of a Lennon life-long dream. Afterwards, he plans to concentrate on increased duties at First National.

The pace of simultaneously working full-time and carrying a virtually full-time academic load was dramatically quicker than anything he had seen on the Emerald Isle. Adapting to it all caused his rapid "Americanization."

"In Ireland, there is much less hectic pace — there's always tomorrow and time is not as big a factor as it is here," he says. The life style in Ireland, he believes, might be helped by the use of American business practices, the young bank executive says.

After graduation and a summer visit to Ireland and his parents on their farm, Mr. Lennon's Americanization is likely to continue.

He has more responsibility at First National with his recent promotion, much more to see of America, and a life-time supply of national politics, one of his lifelong interests, to watch and comment upon.

ART DIRECTOR NAMED

At Trenton Advertising Firm. T. Sullivan Bencze, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bencze,107 North Main Street. cze, 107 North Main Street, Cranbury, has been appointed Associate Art Director of Waldron, MacNamee and Ceglia, advertising and public relations firm, which handles national, regional and local accounts. The appointment was announced by Joseph J. Waldron, President and Vincent Ceglia, Vice President and Art Director.

Mr. Bencze, who makes his home in nearby Hightstown originally joined the firm in 1967 as a staff artist. After an absence of two years during which time he was a staff officer with the Army in Germany, Mr. Bencze rejoined the firm. His appointment to Associate Art Director came several months after his return to civilian life.

Mr. Bencze attended Pratt Institute where he earned his bachelor's degree and did graduate study in three dimensional experimental design.

During his education at Pratt, Mr. Bencze also worked in New York City as a free-lance designer and prior to his employment at Waldron, MacNamee and Ceglia in 1967 he was a designer in the Art Department of Washington Forge in Englishtown.

Obituaries

Mrs. Augusta H. R. White, 96, the last surviving grandchild of John A. Roebling, designer and builder of the Brooklyn Bridge, died at her home, "Hilltop", on Lawrenceville Road January 20.

A Princeton resident for the past 50 years, Mrs. White was born in Trenton in 1875, the daughter of Ferdinand W. Roebling. On her maternal side, she was a granddaughter of Thomas A. Allison, a former Secretary of State for New Jersey.

She was the benefactor of many local and national charities including Trinity Episcopal Church, Princeton Hospital and the United Fund. She was a former member of the New Jersey Guernsey Breeders Association and the American Guernsey Cattle Club, maintaining for many years an outstanding herd of pure bred Guernseys on her farm in Princeton.

She was also a member of the Garden Club of Princeton, the Present Day Club and served for several years on the Board of the New Jersey Women's Republican Club.

Her husband, the late William Townsend White, a pioneer automobile manufacturer, died in 1957. He was president of the Mercer Motor Car Company of Trenton from 1909 until its sale in 1920. He was subsequently president and chairman of the Board of the Union Mills Paper Manufacturing Company of New Hope, Pa.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. George R. Cook 3d, and her son, Ferdinand Roebling White, both of Princeton; two granddaughters and five great grandchildren.

The funeral service was private. Arrangements were made by The Mather Funeral Home.

Thomas R. Conley, 60, of 20 Hillside Avenue, died January 15 in Princeton Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Hyde Park, N.Y., Mr. Conley lived in Princeton for the past 41 years. He was a chauffeur for RCA for the past 18 years and was a member of the Squatters Club of Princeton and Lodge 38, F&AM.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Conley; a son, Richard S. of Trenton, three grandchildren, and a brother, Harold of Hyde Park.

The service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home, the Rev. Dr. William LeG. Tucker, pastor emeritus of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, officiating. Interment was in Princeton Cemetery.

Mrs. Grace P. Grove, 92, of Hopewell, died January 11 in Sunnyfield Nursing Home after a lengthy illness. She was the widow of William E. Grove Sr.

Born in Jamesburg, Mrs. Grove lived in Cranbury for 75 years before moving to Hopewell two years ago. She was a member of the Cranbury Presbyterian Church, a charter member and past Noble Grand of Lady May Rebekah Lodge 94 IOOF and a charter member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Cranbury Fire Company.

Surviving are a son, William E. Jr. of Arlington, Va.; a granddaughter Mrs. John Brokaw of Hopewell, and three great grandchildren.

The service was held in the A. S. Cole Funeral Home, the Rev. Carl Wolf of Cranbury Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment was in Westminster Cemetery.

Mrs. Anna Fritsch, 86, of Reed Road, Pennington, died January 14 in the Parkway Nursing Home. She was the widow of Steven Fritsch.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Mrs. Fritsch lived in Pennington for 57 years. She was a member of St. John's Slovak Lutheran Church, Trenton.

Surviving are three sons, Clifford and Joseph of Hopewell Township and Miles of Pennington; seven grandchildren; 15 great grandchildren and a sister in Europe.

The service was held in St. John's Slovak Lutheran Church, the Rev. Louis Kleskeh officiating. Interment was in Ewing Church Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Wilson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Grace A. French, 79, died January 15 in the Merwick unit of Princeton Hospital after a brief illness.

She was a native of St. Louis, Mo., where she lived at 900 S. Hanley Road.

Surviving are her husband, Dudley French; a daughter, Mrs. Alden S. Blodget Jr. of Princeton; four grandchildren, and a brother, Charles C. Allen of St. Louis.

The service was held in the Church of St. Michael and St. George, St. Louis. Interment was private. Arrangements here were made by the Mather Funeral Home. Memorial gifts may be made to the Children's Hospital of St. Louis.

Frank Kostron, 67, of 35 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, died January 13 in Hunterdon Medical Center. He was the husband of Mrs. Elsie W. Kostron.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Mr. Kostron lived in Hopewell for 20 years and was employed by the Rockwell Manufacturing Company.

Also surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Henry Muentener and the Misses Edith A. and Erica M. Kostron of Hopewell; seven grandchildren and a sister and brother in Germany.

Requiem mass was celebrated in St. Alphonsus Church, with interment in Highland Cemetery. Arrangements were made by the Cromwell Memorial Home.

News Of The CHURCHES

TO HEAR REV. NUDING

At Prince Of Peace. The Rev. Norman Noding of the Board of World Missions of the Lutheran Church in America will be the guest preacher on Sunday at the 10 a.m. service of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church in the Maurice Hawk School, Clarksville Road.

The Rev. Mr. Nuding has served on the Board of World Missions staff since 1967. He is in charge of seeking out candidates for missionary work. Previously he served in Japan for 12 years, as associate professor of English at Japan Lutheran Theological College and as liaison secretary to the Japan Evangelical Church Office. He holds degrees from Wittenberg University, Hamma Divinity School and Princeton Seminary.

REV. PIERSON TO PREACH

In First Presbyterian. The Rev. Paul E. Pierson, a missionary and teacher in Brazil from 1956 to 1970, will be the preacher this Sunday in First Presbyterian Church. Services are at 9 and 11:15 a.m.

A graduate of the University of California in 1949 with a degree in chemical engineering and of Princeton Theological Seminary in 1954 the Rev. Mr. Pierson is completing work for a doctorate in the field of church history at the seminary.

In 1956 he went to Brazil with his wife and family serving first as a pastor evangelist in Corumba under the Board of Foreign Missions, and from 1961 on as professor of church history and missions in the Presbyterian Seminary of the North, Rece Recife, Brazil.

THREE ARE NAMED

To Music Commission. The newly-formed Joint Commission on Church Music of the Episcopal Church includes James H. Litton, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Church; Dr. Lee H. Bristol Jr., former president of Westminster Choir College, and a member of Trinity, and Bishop Robert B. Spears Jr., former rector of Trinity.

The Joint Commission is preparing supplementary collections of church music which will be published in loose-leaf form next spring: "Songs for Liturgy" and "More Hymns and Spiritual Songs." The Commission is composed of two bishops, four priests and eight laymen who will serve for the next three years.

BULLETIN NOTES

Princeton Interfaith Council will hold a second event for church youth in March, following up the skating party at the Princeton Day School rink which drew 100 youth from All Saints' Chapel, Christ Congregation, First Church of Christ, Scientist; First Presbyterian Church, Princeton Jewish Center, Princeton Baptist Church at Penns Neck, the Stuart School, St. Paul's and the Ten Acre Foundation.

Dr. R. B. Y. Scott, professor of New Testament, emeritus, at Princeton, will preach at 11 on Sunday in Princeton Baptist Church at Penns Neck. His topic is "The Speech of God."

Dr. Evelyn Thompson, assistant minister at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will conduct the 10 a.m. service this Sunday. Her sermon title is "Go Back and Tell John."

The Rev. James S. Weaver will conduct the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services on Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck. His sermon topic is "Bored?"

TOWN TOPICS goes into every home and place of business in Princeton. By their own figures, no other newspaper does half as well.

WHAT IS SO RARE —

as a brick house in Princeton?
We have one to show you — and a beauty it is! Custom built on a breathtaking lakeside lot, it offers all the refinements, niceties and little extras that a discriminating owner can put into a home. And all his loving care!

Four bedrooms, three full and two half baths, three working fireplaces, ceilings high enough for your precious antiques. And a pretty terrace looking out over the lake — a gorgeous view shared by most rooms in the house.

If you are looking for a well-built, low-maintenance home, on a lot that is unique for location and charm, let us show you this fine property. It is truly one of a kind!

WOULD YOU LIKE — a solid, well built older house? In an established neighborhood with mature plantings?

Would you like a big, light, airy modern kitchen — with plenty of room for a breakfast table, as well as an enclosed porch looking out to a fenced rear yard and a spectacular weeping cherry?

Do you need four bedrooms Can you use three and a half baths? Do extras such as air conditioning, attic fans, remote control garage door openers, fire and burglar alarms appeal?

Then call us to see this immaculately kept home.
It could be the one buy of your lifetime.
Owners have purchased another property out of state and are most anxious for offers.

Old brick and much glass make this Township Contemporary of special interest. Five bedrooms, family room, study, brick terraces, on almost two acres of woodland.

Beautiful woodwork, high ceilings and numerous fireplaces add distinction to this English Tudor on Library Place. Five bedrooms and three baths on second floor, three bedrooms and bath on third.

The center hall opening to a secluded terrace and garden makes the floor plan of this attractive Town House, on a quiet street in the Borough, traditionally colonial. Four bedrooms, 4½ baths.

Brick construction gives low maintenance to this gracious Colonial in the western Borough. Master suite on first floor, three other bedrooms and 2 baths. Beautiful grounds.

Many other homes are available in a wide range of size, location and price.

SALES — REAL ESTATE

Thompson Land, as part of its expansion program, is looking for people who know farms and land in the central Jersey area (farmers — active, retired or gentlemen; salesmen; planners, long time residents; etc.) who are interested in getting into the field of real estate to make use of their knowledge. We are interested in people with good sales potential or background who would like to move over to this very interesting, challenging, and rewarding field. We are also interested in talking to people with varied business, investment, or professional backgrounds, disenchanted or bored in their careers, and thinking of a change, who perhaps would like to spend more time outdoors and be, more or less, their own boss. DON'T HAVE A CHAUFFEUR OR HANDYMAN?

Then waste no time seeing this excellent Township house that's still new enough to shine, but just old enough to have had any kicks taken out; and so near to everything the children want to do, that your hours behind the wheel will dwindle to a precious few. Center hall plan includes living room with fireplace and french doors to the lawn, family room with sliding glass to a brick terrace, formal dining room, well-equipped kitchen with breakfast area, large mud-room and lavatory. Upstairs, 4 corner bedrooms and two fine baths, basement and two car garage. All this and you won't have to spend the summer cutting grass, as the grounds are small and easily maintained. Relax, my friend, for $63,900.

A COUNTRY HOUSE RIGHT IN TOWN

The brook with its little bridge, the ancient trees and the acres of untouched land behind, all combine to give this older Princetoo house the feeling of a country place. Bright and sunny interior has: entrance hall, living room with fireplace, dining ell, eat-in kitchen, cozy study, all-purpose room and lavatory. On the second floor, there are 4 bedrooms, one paneled in pine and off by itself, and 2 baths. Secluded stone walled terrace. Available immediately at $69,500
